ENGLAND ACTS ON MEXICO

LONDON, Feb. 24.—Great Britain has refused to accept General Villa's unsupported word as to the fate of William S. Benton, the English subject killed at Juarez.

It has sent its own representative to Mexico to make full investigation, and the American government has instructed its consular representative to force the exhumation of Benton's body.

Formal announcement to this effect was made in the House of Commons this afternoon by Sir Edward Grey, secretary of Foreign Affairs, in reply to inquiries by the opposition as to the Mexican situation.

"The United States representative," said Sir Edward, "has informed General Villa that he must not interfere with the British consul, who it is essential, should visit the spot and supply the most adequate report. The United States consul has been instructed to press for the exhumation of Benton's body."

The announcement by the Foreign secretary was the first to the effect that England would herself conduct an investigation instead of relying upon the report made by Consul Thomas D. Edwards, the United States official, to whom Villa gave his version of Benton's death.

The Manchester Guardian, a powerful Liberal organ, in commenting upon Sir Edward Grey's statement in Parliament yesterday, said:

"It is not mere playing with words to say that in such a case the United States has no responsibility? If that were so, the Monroe Doctrine would be a mere instrument of international anarchy, whereas the whole tendency of President Wilson's policy has been to make it a force for order and good government. If we are not responsible then the United States is."

VILLA DECLARES THAT BAUCH IS FREE; SORRY ABOUT BENTON

CITY OF CHIHUAHUA, Feb. 24.—Gustave Bauch, the American for whom Secretary of State Bryan has demanded a fair trial from the Constitutionalists, has been freed, according to an announcement made by General Villa today.

The statement of the rebel leader was received with reservations here because he said Bauch had been released at Juarez, while rebel officers

TRIED TO RECONCILE RANTOULS

Emphatic testimony in defence of Mrs. Lois Burnett Rantoul, the high-bred, aristocratic granddaughter of James Russell Lowell, the poet, was given by Dr. Charles P. Putnam, of Marlboro street nerve specialist, when the trial of Mrs. Rantoul's suit for divorce from Edward L. Rantoul was resumed before Judge Hardy at East Cambridge courthouse today.

Dr. Putnam was examined at much length by Mrs. Rantoul's lawyer, Thomas W. Proctor, on her illness, the cause thereof and the physician's talks with husband and wife. Toward the close of the examination Mr. Proctor asked:

"Doctor, did you finds Mrs. Rantoul to be a pure-minded woman?"

Dr. Putnam replied with force:

"She was. I never saw anything to give any other impression."

Among the hypothetical questions Mr. Proctor asked the physician were these:

Q.—Assuming that Mr. Rantoul had inflicted upon his wife abusive talk and physical force, what would be the effect? A.—An unfavorable effect, such as I found in her.

Q.—Assuming all these unfavorable conditions, to what extent would they be responsible for Mrs. Rantoul's condition in the Fall of 1911 and the Winter of 1912? A.—They would be the main cause.

SOUGHT RECONCILIATION.

The physician's testimony brought out that Mrs. Rantoul had confided to him her love for Chester C. (Chippie) Rumrill, her husband's friend, classmate and clubmate; also that the physician had tried to reconcile the Rantouls.

Dr. Putnam testified that he found Mrs. Rantoul's health rapidly breaking down. This could be due, he said, to the conditions in her home after the husband's discovery of the Rumrill affair. Her condition, in his opinion, became so grave that he sought first to quiet her mind. With this end in view he asked her to invite her husband to visit him.

Rantoul, Dr. Putnam testified, came to his office in answer to his request. They talked over her failing health, and the effect on her health of the Rumrill affair.

"I asked Mr. Rantoul," Dr. Put-

ARTIST RIDER FOUND GUILTY

Red Sox Players Off to Camp

By A. H. C. MITCHELL.

To the cheers and well wishes of a band of Red Sox rooters, Manager Bill Carrigan and a few of his players rolled out of the South Station at 9:00 o'clock today, bound for Hot Springs. The party will reach training grounds in two days and on Friday will begin their limbering up work on the diamond at Hot Springs.

With Carrigan were Clyde Engle, first baseman, looking as fond as ever; Forrest Cady, catcher, tall and gangly; Olaf Henriksen, champion pitch hitter of the world; Hoboken Mulrenan of Woburn, kid pitcher and Dr. Charlie Green, the trainer.

BIG CROWD SEES GETAWAY.

There was a big crowd at the South station to see the getaway. President Lannin, Vice-President John F. Taylor, Secretary Tilley and Joe Mangone, the Commissary of the Red Sox organization, were among the first to appear on the scene. Each of them had a box of cigars for Carrigan and his players.

Mrs. Cady was on hand to say good-bye to her husband. Old-time fans, such as "Uncle Bill" Cahill and "Nuf Ced" McGreevey, stayed with the crowd until the train pulled out. Joe Burns, the Taunton boniface, who has made many trips with the Red Sox to Hot Springs, Mike McDonough, president of the Lawton New England League club; Tim Leonard of Lawrence, Carrigan's old friend, and George Wise, the artistic megaphone man at Fenway Park, were also noticed among the crowd.

All the men that comprised Carrigan's party were on hand early. Half a dozen photographers clamored for a chance to snap all hands. The station was dark and foggy, so the party moved out to the outer end of it, where the sunlight played, and there the camera men got in their nefarious work. There was a final handshake all around and a moment later the train started.

WOOD'S LOSS IS MOURNED.

"It is mighty tough luck about Joe Wood," said Carrigan just before the start, "but I had much rather the misfortune came now than in the middle of the season. Now we know where we are at. We know we cannot depend on Joe, so we must depend on the other pitchers at Hot Springs. Not one of these will be allowed to take a chance of developing a sore arm. We have an exhibition games until April 20, so we will have more than a month at Hot Springs and Marlboro to get in shape without worrying about meeting other clubs.

"Of course, these exhibition games will be fierce, but the boys like to win from just the same and often they take too many chances and play too hard before they are in perfect condition.

"Neither Joe nor will be we quite at Hot Springs. Don't forget we've got a good ball club in spite of the illness of Wood and we think we will be heard from when the season starts."

ENGLE STICKS TO LAND.

Clyde Engle, who turned one of Carrigan's party, was intending to go to Hot Springs by way of the boat to New Orleans, but when he recalled the number of disasters and the storms and the freezing weather of the past few days, he decided that he would rather not tie to water and stick to dry land.

Secretary Tilley lost to do some lively hustling to arrange Engle's transportation with the Carrigan party, but finally things were all fixed and the first baseman took the train with the others.

Ray Collins, the southpaw; Catch "Heinie" Wagner and "Big Chief" Garrow, the Indian pitching recruit are due to join the squad at Albany late today.

FINED $300 IN CASE OF POSING GIRLS IN NUDE

Henry Orne Rider, the Auburndale artist who photographed girls nude and draped, was found guilty by Judge Bacon in Newton Police Court today of having in his possession, with intent to sell, pictures which would tend to corrupt the morals of youth and of distributing such pictures.

He was fined $100 on each charge and was given until April 7 to pay.

Judge Bacon said he imposed the minimum fine because "no immoral or improper motive" appeared.

The second charge, which the judge discussed first, was based on two pictures that Rider gave Helen Z. Graham of Waltham to take home. On that charge Judge Bacon said that the testimony showed that Rider took a picture of Miss Graham nude and delivered it to her, along with another.

MINIMUM PENALTY.

The first charge, of having corrupting pictures in his possession with intent to sell, was based on eighteen pictures seized by the police. On this charge Judge Bacon said:

"Some are open to objection. There was no evidence as to the purpose of sale. I understand from the testimony that the purpose was to show to models in order to explain results which he wished to get. From the testimony he showed these always to girls and never to boys, not even to his intimate friends. As there appears no immoral motive or improper motive I shall find the defendant guilty on both charge, but only give the minimum sentence of $100 fine on each."

Schooner Calls for Help Off Cape Cod

Word was received in Boston early this afternoon that a five-masted schooner had been sighted off Nauset, on the back of Cape Cod, flying a distress signal." A fifty-mile northeast gale was blowing, with thick snow.

Edwin Ginn Estate Nearly $3,000,000

The estate of the late Edwin Ginn, the well-known publisher, was officially announced to be $2,775,000 when Judge McIntyre in the East Cambridge Probate Court allowed the will, which gave $1,000,000 to the World Peace Foundation. Lewis Parkhurst of Winchester, F. W. Whitman of Boston and John A. Abbott of Winchester were appointed executors of the will. Of the estate $700,000 is in real estate and $2,324,000 in personal property.

Lothrop Wins Fight for Richeson Fee

Dr. Howard A. Lothrop, the physician who was called to to attend Clarence V. T. Richeson at the Charles street jail after Richeson's self-inflicted injuries, has received the full amount of the bill of $435, for which he had brought suit against the city of Boston and the estate of the late Sheriff Seavey. By the settlement the city paid $335 and the estate of the late sheriff the remaining $300.

"L" Files Plans for River Structure

The Boston Elevated has filed with the Port Directors and Public Service Commission, for approval, prints of plans for the structure to be erected over the Mystic River in Charlestown as a part of the extension of the Elevated into Everett.

Two Battleships in Naval Program

WASHINGTON, Feb. 24.—The House naval affairs committee today ordered a two-battleship program for the fiscal year 1914-1915. Besides two battleships at $15,000 each, there will be six destroyers at $1,000,000 each, one mosquito submarine at $1,000,000; three coast defence submarines at $650,000 each and four harbor defence submarines at $375,000 each. $140,000,000 is fixed as the appropriate cost of the service during the next year.

Stop Divorce Suit on Queen's Request

LONDON, Feb. 24.— The sensational divorce suit of Alexander Brodrick Leslie-Melville against his beautiful young wife, in which Earl Fitzwilliam, one of the richest and most powerful peers in England was named, was withdrawn today. It is understood that the principals in the case agreed to a mutual presentation at the supposed wishes of the royal family. It is known that Queen Mary has been greatly shocked at the scandal.

MAYOR IS FORCED OUT OF SEAT IN CONGRESS

Mayor Curley resigned from Congress as a result of the fight begun by Representative Mann to have him ousted.

The Mayor mailed his resignation to the Governor and Speaker Clark of the House of Representatives, to take effect February 1. The Mayor says he regrets that his resignation will necessitate the expense of a special election and says that it will also be the parent cause of some action on persons to "make political capital at the expense of myself and the party represented in Congress by me."

The Mayor says he has not definitely determined to retire in Congress but he wants to find the front pages of the morning newspapers all dominated not with news of the fight begun by Representative Mann and the resolution introduced in Congress to throw James M. Curley out of the House of Representatives.

The Mayor started at once for the State House, where he conferred with Governor Walsh and then came to City Hall, where he met the reporters and prepared his letters of resignation and his public statement.

DUAMES POLITICAL FOES.

The Mayor blames his political enemies and those who voted him out in Congress for the fight begun by Representative Mann.

Here is the Mayor's statement:

"In view of the action taken by the minority leader, James Mann, I have decided to tender my resignation to His Excellency the Governor and to Hon. Champ Clark, Speaker of the House of Representatives, to take effect February 1, 1914.

"This step necessitates the issuance of a proclamation by the governor at the earliest possible date, a special election to the Twelfth Congressional district in fill the vacancy caused by my resignation.

"I regret that this action is apparently necessary because of the expressed desire of many people, but I believe in justice to myself this course is necessary. I am not afraid of the apparent desire of some persons to make political capital at the expense of myself or the party represented in Congress by me."

QUESTION OF ECONOMY.

Mayor Curley after he had given out the statement said:

"My interest in holding my seat in Congress was to save the city $12,000 for an election and the bust

Rich in the Right Kind of Real Estate Opportunities

More than mere retailers of "Real Estate" offerings are the "Want Ads" of this classification in the Boston AMERICAN. They are conveyers of news of the choicest opportunities of the hour—and always THE RIGHT KIND of opportunities.

People with real estate propositions that won't bear the strictest investigation know better than to try to advertise them in the Boston AMERICAN.

Experience has taught them that part of the price of admittance to these columns is absolute truthfulness of statement, integrity of offering, and fairness in methods of dealing. And investors who are real-estate wise are also well aware of this fact.

As a result, the AMERICAN'S clientele of responsive, ready-to-buy real estate seekers is constantly increasing in number. And growing in popularity, as well, is the practice of advertising FOR some particular proposition.

Daily it is shown that to successfully search for the hard-to-find is to put your requirements on paper and leave with any of the AMERICAN'S "Want Ad" stations, the branch office at 264 Washington street, Main office at 80 Summer street, or

An easterly snow squall hit Cape Cod early today.

After escaping a blizzard which has left the Middle West choked with snow, Boston sidestepped a cold wave today. The mercury dropped sharply from 10 above zero at midnight to 5 above at 8 o'clock. Then it rose just as sharply until it recorded 9 above at 11 o'clock.

Rising temperature is scheduled for tomorrow, so Boston seems to have dodged the freeze that was scheduled.

ZERO IN NEW YORK.

Dispatches from New York say that while the metropolis was saved from another blizzard by the storm blowing out to sea, zero weather prevailed again today. The situation was made serious by the threatened epidemic of illness due to the inability of the street cleaning department to removed accumulated garbage. Many streets are still impassable from the storm which struck New York ten days ago. Thirty-three hundred persons applied for shelter at East Side institutions, 200 of them women and children. The municipal lodging houses care for 1,745 persons, of whom forty-three were women and twenty-three children. A number of cases of exposure were treated at hospitals.

Heavy snow and extreme cold have caused death and damage in the West. The entire upper Mississippi and Ohio Valley regions were stormbound as the result of the fiercest blizzard of the Winter, which began Sunday and continued today. The storm was milder today, but the extreme cold that followed the hardest part of the storm made recovery from the effects of the blizzard difficult. Practically the entire country from the Atlantic coast to the Rocky Mountains, from Tennessee to the Canadian border is covered with snow, and it is snowing today in many part of the Central West.

FIVE DEATHS IN CHICAGO.

Dispatches from Chicago said that five deaths were attributed to the storm and a score of near fatal accidents were reported. In all parts of Illinois railroad and interurban trains were blocked by deep snow drifts. In the outlying districts no efforts were made to get the children to the school buildings. The storm in the Illinois capital was the worst in the city's history. Several funerals were postponed until tomorrow because no paths had been cut to the cemeteries.

Railroads and electric lines in Indiana were being operated today without regard to schedules. A few of the public schools in Indianapolis resumed sessions, but most of the buildings were closed.

Reports from Ohio cities told of the demoralization of traffic throughout the State. Canton and Newark were probably the hardest hit of all the Ohio cities and a fuel famine was threatened in each place.

In Missouri, Iowa, Kansas, trains were blocked by great drifts. Schedules on railroads between St. Louis and Chicago were abandoned today.

Mrs. Longworth Wears Knee Knot

WASHINGTON, Feb. 24.—Mrs. Nicholas Longworth has introduced a new fashion fad.* It is the knee knot, which she wears on most of her gowns. The knot is copied by the leading women of Washington. It consists of a huge bow of ribbon with many loops, which catches her draped skirt in a tunnel at her left knee.

JOYCE, OUT FOR CONGRESS, WILL ATTACK CURLEY

Former Senator Thomas M. Joyce of Ward 17 today announced his candidacy for the Democratic nomination for Congress in the Twelfth district, and declared that he would make public on the stump sensational charges against Mayor Curley.

"Documentary evidence concerning Mayor Curley, which I hold in my possession, and which I consider stimulating to the political mind in changing votes in a campaign, will be made public by me in my canvass for votes for the Democratic nomination for Congress in the Twelfth District," said Joyce.

"In politics it is a bad precedent for a man to show his hand before the time arrives. But I promise that the evidence I have gathered is more peppery than the matter to which I referred in speeches made by me in the last mayoralty campaign."

Seek Two Men in a Missing Dory

PROVINCETOWN, Feb. 24.—Much anxiety is felt for the safety of two Portuguese fishermen, John Bolton and a man known as Christopher in the Portuguese colony. They set out to set trawls about 5:30 last evening, west-northwest of Race Point, headed toward Provincetown.

Their power boat is believed to have broken down and as they left without sail and at the mercy of a northeast snowstorm, which is raging on the sea, friends fear they are drifting out to sea.

The United States revenue cutter Gresham has gone in search of the men.

New England Rail Rates Suspended

WASHINGTON, Feb. 24.—Increases in rates on marble in carloads proposed by the Rutland Railroad from points in Vermont, New York City, via Murray's steamers, were suspended by the Interstate Commerce Commission until September 7. Proposed increases in rates on lumber on the Maine Central Railroad from points in Maine to various destinations were suspended until September 12.

Sears Scores Hit With Nashua Elks

Richard W. (Dick) Sears of the Boston AMERICAN was the guest of honor at the Elks banquet last night in Nashua, N. H., and spoke on the life of a press photographer of a great daily newspaper, showing over 200 slides. Sears made a hit by his reference to Thaw. One of the favorite slides was the picture of the Boston Lodge on the way to the State House to visit Governor Walsh, taken early in the day.

Discuss Importance of the Canal Fair

LONDON, Feb. 24.—The political aspects attached to the refusal of England to participate officially in the Panama Exposition were discussed briefly in Parliament this afternoon by Sir Edward Grey. He explained that the government had taken into account the importance which might be attached to this action in the United States.

Mexican Attack Is Fatal to American

Mr. Hearst Congratulates Great German Newspaper

New York, Feb. 21, 1914.
Dr. Ullstein, Morgenpost, Berlin:

I LEARN with pleasure that your great publishing house will tomorrow celebrate the Morgenpost's attainment of 400,000 subscribers, making the largest newspaper circulation in Germany.

Let me congratulate you on your success and hope that your readers will support their American relatives in their endeavors for closer German-American relations in culture and commerce, which my papers here are continually urging.

It may interest you and your readers to know that the German paper in the United States with largest number of subscribers, the New Yorker Deutches Journal, has attained a circulation of 50,000 morning daily and 70,000 Sundays.

This is relatively still compared with your great publication, but it seems to me to indicate the importance of German citizens in America. W. R. HEARST.

Berlin, Feb. 23, 1914.
W. R. Hearst, New York:

YOUR kind congratulations are returned in the same spirit of personal and professional amity which stamps your message.

Americans may rest assured that the very best part of German citizens approve of and heartily indorse all endeavors to close tighter the political, commercial and cultural bonds that exist between the two great countries.

We are fully aware that your newspapers render valuable services in this direction.

CHAMBERLAIN, WAR HERO, IS DEAD IN MAINE

PORTLAND, Me., Feb. 24.—General Joshua L. Chamberlain, hero of many battles in the Civil War, former president of Bowdoin College, and former governor of Maine, died today at the age of eighty-five years. Since 1900 he had been surgeon of the post of Portland. General Chamberlain suffered for some time as a result of wounds received in battle. He was known throughout the country as the hero of Little Round Top, being breveted major-general and receiving a medal from congress for bravery he displayed in this and other battles.

He was commander of the parade at the time of Lee's surrender and at one time was in command of the First Division, Fifth Army Corps of the Potomac. He was governor of Maine from 1866 to 1871.

Earle's Companion Given a Hearing

HOMORANTIN, France, Feb. 24.—Charlotte Herman, charged with aiding Ferdinand Pinney Earle, the American painter, in kidnaping his son from a French school, has arrived here from Norway, where the pair were arrested. She was given a hearing before an examining magistrate at La Rochelle, but will be brought to Homorantin, where the trial will be held.

Teacher in Boston for 44 Years, Dies

MOOSE TICKET, SAYS MURDOCK, IN EACH STATE

WASHINGTON, Feb. 24.—"The Progressive party is going out into this campaign with a straight ticket in every State," today said Representative Murdock of Kansas, Progressive leader in the House, upon his return from a month's campaign in behalf of his senatorial candidacy.

"The Democrats," he said, "have failed to deliver. Like the other reactionary old party, the Republicans they have failed to make good.

"That will be the slogan of our campaign. The Democrats made a tariff law and the cost of living stayed up. They reformed the currency, so as to keep the money of the country out of Wall street, and last week New York gained $2,000,000 in deposits. They are drafting an interstate trade concession bill, and it will exercise no authority over business corporations.

"The Interstate Commerce Commission has been bolstered up for years as a great regulative body. Now we discover that the New York Railroad has been looted, the back of the Union Pacific broken, the Frisco run into the ground and other roads treated in similar fashion. These old parties have not delivered the goods."

Radcliffe Seniors Name Class Officers

The Radcliffe seniors have elected class officers as follows: Marshal, Mildred Clark of Newton; class poet, Anna Holman of Cambridge; class historian, Natalie Walker of Roxbury; class lawyer, Frederica Gilbert of Brookline; chairman of class day committee, Katherine Dummer of Chicago; chairman of class book committee, Frances Brock of Urbana, Ill.; chairman of invitation committee, Helen Bocher of Cambridge; chairman of the baccalaureate committee, Abigail Eliot of Boston; permanent secretary, Dorthy Tewksbury of Concord.

Attack Guards at Copper Strike Probe

HANCOCK, Mich., Feb. 24.—Michigan guardsmen on duty in the copper country during the early days of the mine workers' strikes were the centre of attack on brutality charges in the testimony offered before the congressional investigating committee. The miners were expected to conclude their case today.

WOMEN VOTE IN PRIMARIES IN CHICAGO TODAY

CHICAGO, Feb. 24.—Women of Chicago for the first time joined with the men today in nominating candidates of all parties for Aldermen. The result of the election in every ward is uncertain. No one could estimate accurately the number of women who would go to the polls. Although the other parties have recorded more voters among the women, it was figured today that the Democratic candidates would receive the largest support on feminine ballots. This assumption is based on the fast that there are no factional squabbles among the Democrats, while the Progressive and Republican women voters have been in dispute over many questions since they became enfranchised.

Nearly 550,000 men and women are eligible to cast their ballots today. Of this number it was figured that not more than 200,000 will vote, and of this number less than 100,000 will be women. Suffrage leaders have been waging a hard fight to keep the women voters from attaching themselves to any particular party at this time. A voter who casts his ballot with one party today cannot vote at the primary election of another party for the next two years.

In five of the city wards women will be nominated without opposition. In two wards a warm contest has developed between Democratic men and women candidates for the aldermanic nomination. The most interesting election fight to follow the primary is in the first ward, where Miss Marion H. Drake will be given the Progressive nomination and "Bathhouse John" Coughlin will be chosen by the Democrats to succeed himself.

Lawrence Denies Lamar Activity

WASHINGTON, Feb. 24.—Senator Norris today said that he would seek action by the Senate at the earliest moment on his resolution calling on the Department of Justice for details of the plan which has been or may be agreed upon for the reorganization of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad. William R. Lawrence of Medford, Mass., the largest minority stockholder of the New Haven, who issued a statement here recently declaring that New Haven officials are attempting to control the appointment of the proposed board of trustees for the Boston & Maine Railroad, denied that David Lamar is in any way connected with the effort to cause the Department of Justice to publish its plans.

Rose Pastor Stokes Talks on Socialism

"We today in society are beginning to have a scientific view of the human being," declared Mrs. Rose Pastor Stokes, in speaking on socialism for the Boston School of Social Science. "We feel that we must eliminate the causes of poverty, drunkenness, insanity. We've dotted the country with charitable institutions to cure an evil which grows apace because we have left the causes of these evils untouched."

Observe Opening of Lent Tomorrow

Ash Wednesday, which ushers in the Lenten season tomorrow, will be observed in the Episcopal churches of Greater Boston. At 7 o'clock at Holy Cross Cathedral, morning prayer and holy communion will be observed. Litany, holy communion and sermon at 10 o'clock will be followed by special noonday services with a short address at 12. At 5 p. m. there will be services of evening prayer. O. K. COLORED WIG Passes Southern Society

AT NEW YORK BALL.

NEW YORK, Feb. 24.—The colored wig, the latest gorgeous artifice from Paris, today has the sanction of New York Southern society. The wig was not only sanctioned and winsomely worn, but it was admired at the Dixie dinner and colonial ball of the society.

Almost all colors framed the faces of Southern beauties when dancing began. Of course, it was the simple white-powdered wig that prevailed.

LONGSTREET GIRL REUNITED WITH MOTHER

The Worcester police, when they were brought into the case, today told the authorities of several cities to assist in the search. The girl's mother told them that she feared her daughter had run away in an effort to enter a convent, and said she might be making for Buffalo, where she has a half-brother who is a priest.

More Roads Plead for Canal Exemption

WASHINGTON, Feb. 24.—Additional applications today were filed with the Interstate Commerce Commission by railroads owning water carriers, asking permission to continue their operation after July 1, when the Panama Canal act becomes effective. Among the roads are the Rutland Railroad Company, owning the Rutland Transit Company, operating boats on the Great Lakes and St. Lawrence River; the Grand Trunk Railway Company of Canada, having vessels on Lake Ontario.

The funeral of Oakes Ames, president of the Lamson Company, who died at his home in Milton, will be held tomorrow afternoon from the Forest Hills Chapel. He would have been fifty-one today.

FOUR RESCUED FROM FLAMES IN PROVIDENCE

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Feb. 24.—Four persons, including two women, were rescued, three of them being carried two stories down a ladder by firemen, and a damage of $10,000 was caused by a general alarm fire today in the two and one-half story brick building at No. 36 North Main street.

The building is occupied by three stores on the ground floor and tenement suites in the story and a half above.

Edward J. Kiley and Frederick Paina, firemen, were told that Llewelyn Jones, a night watchman, was asleep on the second floor. They dashed up the stairway and were able to drag the half suffocated man to the street before the flames blocked further egress that way.

Following shouts from the crowd that other persons were asleep on the top floor the firemen placed ladders in the rear of the building. Kiley and Paine bringing Charles Eather, twenty-one years old, Mrs. Joseph Powers and Mrs. Margaret Medbury to the windows and getting them down the long ladder to the street. Hard work by the firemen finally prevented the flames from spreading to the adjacent buildings.

Second Fire in Week Drives Out Lodgers

Six persons fled to the street to escape the smoke when an overheated furnace, for the second time in a week, started a fire which burned from the basement to the second floor of the lodging house at No. 248 Columbus avenue, South End, and caused a damage of $500. The house is owned by Thomas Swan, and conducted by George Barry.

GALVIN WOULD BE GUARDIAN OF W. E. ENGLISH

Guardianship papers for the custody of William E. English secretary of the Massachusetts Hospital Reform Association, who figured in the alleged clew to the missing Eleanor Myrtle Arlin, were taken out today by Dr. George W. Galvin of No. 180 Huntington avenue.

Mr. English affirmed he knew Miss Arlin's whereabouts, but on being question failed to substantiate his claim. It was reported that, as a result of English's connection with the Arlin case, steps were being taken to recommit him to the Westboro Hospital for the Insane. Dr. Galvin's action precludes any such possibility.

English is on parole from Westboro. His probation automatically expires on March 28, unless circumstances to the contrary give the officials cause for his further detention.

"I shall assume the guardianship of Mr. English in order to keep him out of the hands of the Westboro officials," said Dr. Galvin today. "He was especially valuable to me in our recent investigation of the State institutions for the insane, and gave me a lot of facts regarding Westboro.

"I have secured English a position as a salesman, so he will not be dependent on the charity of the Hospital Reform Association in case they take steps to repudiate him."

English declared today:

"I do not know for a fact what steps are being taken looking toward my possible recommitment to Westboro, however, I have no fear in case they should take me back there. I have lots of friends at Westboro, and am sure of my board and keep at least—which is more than is true of life outside the institution. I shouldn't be in the least surprised if some attempt was made to put me back in Westboro."

The Chaperon's CHATTER

By THE DOWAGER.

By far the most important event scheduled for this the last day before Ash Wednesday—is the Ice Carnival to be held for the benefit of the Ellis Memorial. The fairy pantomime by Mr. and Mrs. Muller reveals a story translated from the German and the costumes the stars are to wear were brought from abroad for this special occasion.

The smartest of the society set are taking an active interest in the affair.

¶ The Record-breaking response to this big sale last year, proved that this is exactly the right time when people need the saving advantages of such a sale. ¶ This is another forceful triumph of our merchandising system—in offering to our customers the RIGHT GOODS, at the RIGHT TIME and at the RIGHT PRICES. ¶ This has been a disastrous year for many manufacturers and jobbers. Some of them were pushed to great sacrifices in order to obtain ready cash. ¶ We took advantage of these conditions and are now able to offer far better bargains than before, with larger stocks, more varied assortments—everything to be closed out at ½ and even less than ½ regular prices. Shop early if you want to get the best bargains.

WORKERS GUESTS AT SLATER HOME

Remodeled Mansion Is Thrown Open for Reception to the Families of Toilers.

Perhaps the most notable society event in the Back Bay this season was Mrs. Mabel Hunt Slater's reception on Washington's Birthday in the re-modeled and redecorated Slater mansion at No. 148 Beacon street.

Mrs. Slater received, not her smart society friends, but the workmen who did the re-modeling and redecorating.

With the workmen came their wives and families.

The butcher, the baker and the candlestick maker were there because those people feel people interested in their welfare.

But the plasterer was there, and the painter and the carpenter, likewise the layer of tile and mosaics, the panel-maker, the decorator and floor-polisher, the tapestry-hanger and others.

Mrs. Plasterer came with her husband and Mrs. Carpenter came with her spouse and some of their sons and daughters as well, enough to go to a ball championship on the water side of Beacon street, as the late lamented Silas Lapham delighted to call it.

MANY NATIONALITIES ATTEND.

Mrs. Slater received her guests, escorted them about the house, so they could view the work. She even was thoughtful to have the leader of the Boston Cadet band—there was music, of course—provide refreshments of different national airs.

In this connection it may be said that Zanowski played "The Melting Pot," working represent many nationalities. Zanowski played up one of the musical programs there was one air or another that meant the native land for the Americanized guests.

The Slater mansion on Beacon street is a wonderful example of redecoration. Pages have been written about the tapestries alone, which hang in the big hall room. There are five of the priceless Artemesia tapestries, which were made in the sixteenth century for Catherine de Medici, Queen of Henry II. of France.

There are Brussels tapestries of the seventeenth century draped as portieres in the upper hall. A series of woven pictures from Pardon's "Telemachus" adorns one side of the dining room.

There is a firestore room and a Chinese room, appropriately adorned. The mansion is one to delight an architect, a decorator, an artist, or anyone posted in the best things in art and household furnishing.

The interior changes were only recently completed. Mrs. Slater then opened the mansion, with its new treasures, for the delight of her younger daughters, Miss Hope Slater.

Her daughter's coming-out ranked first in the mother's heart, as a matter of course. But the next function at the Slater home was not a dinner or a dance or even a hospitality for the "Social Register" set. It was the workingmen's reception on Washington's Birthday.

If the sequence of guests is any criterion, Mrs. Slater puts her family first, the people who work for her second, and society last.

This creed is borne out, too, by Mrs. Slater's widely known hospitalities toward the Slater mill operatives in Webster. But these Washington's Birthday guests were not even employees of the Slater mills, who work for the Slaters year in and year out. They were workmen who were employed on the town house and on big, busy, done their task, will pass out of Mrs. Slater's life.

But here is how Mrs. Slater looked at it, to use her own expressions today:

"I am a very great believer in hospitality. It is one of the greatest assets a person can possess. We enjoy our home. Why not let others enjoy it with us?

"And I gave the plasterers a chance to view his work, the interior decorator his work and so on. They all seemed very much pleased. The head of all was the genuine appreciation displayed. They were glad to see their finished work in its finished surroundings.

"This custom of housewarming is not a new one for me. I am quite used to it. I enjoy doing things for others.

There was thorough good fellowship at the reception on Washington's birthday. The men came with their wives, their sweethearts, mothers and sisters. I am sure from what they said that they enjoyed themselves.

The reception was from 4 o'clock to the Sunday afternoon. Assisting Mrs. Slater in receiving were her daughters, Miss Esther and Miss Hope Slater, the latter but a year out from school, also H. Forbes Bigelow, architect of the Slater mansion, and Mrs. Bigelow. Several of Mrs. Slater's Back Bay friends came in through the afternoon and took on the arduous duties of receiving, and Mrs. Slater very busy with her assemble layers and servers and plasterers.

GUESTS GET THE BEST.

The working guests and their families went over the ground floor and second floor thoroughly, where the major part of the re-modelling and re-decorating has been done.

The tile room, where his skill had wrought harmonious effect with the work of the decorator, and seeing the product in the whole helped many of the workmen, too.

Many of them, says Mrs. Slater, came to me and said: 'I can now see just the reason why you required that,' while I was on the work to do the work a certain way."

The hand leader obeyed Mrs. Slater's direction to come loaded with international music. He had all the guests up and played up one country and then another.

Some of the airs had Mrs. Slater guessing, but there would always be some grizzled fellow from ear to ear and who knows that, if she should recognize the tune, the smiling guests did. Inquiry would show, as Mrs. Slater expected, that this was strange to her, was the national air of the man who smiled so.

Why Not Let Others Enjoy Our Home with Us," Says Mrs. Slater.

MALDEN GIRL AND BOY HELD AS RUNAWAYS

WORCESTER, Feb. 24—B. C. Emmons of Malden has telephoned to local police that he will appear in Central District court today to claim his son, Horace B. Emmons, sixteen, who is held with Gertrude T. Powers, seventeen, a Malden High School senior, on the charge of being runaways. The young folks insist that they were married in Quincy a few days ago, but have been unable to produce a marriage certificate and were locked up on complaint of Marshall F. Curtis, half-brother of the girl.

The boy and girl arrived at the Curtis home, No. 146 Chandler street, yesterday. The girl was expected, but Curtis was surprised when she came accompanied by the young man.

Curtis suspected it might be a runaway match, so he notified the police. Scarcely had Curtis left the station before Sergeant Williams received a telephone call from B. C. Emmons of Malden, stating that he understood his son was in Worcester and asked the police to find the boy and hold him as a runaway. The girl is the daughter of Thomas Powers of No. 135 Laurel street, Malden. Sergeant Williams had merely made for the marriage certificate that the boy and girl said was in Malden.

The girl stated, according to the police, that she and Emmons were married and that the marriage certificate was in a drawer in his bureau in Malden. Emmons was noncommittal to the police. He said they were at liberty to book him as married or single as they saw fit. He gave his occupation as postoffice employe and the girl was booked as a schoolgirl.

Fear Sachem Is Pivoted on Wreck

NORFOLK, Va., Feb. 24.—Battered by increasingly high seas, the British freight steamers Sachem and Riversdale are hard aground outside the eastern shore of Virginia. The Hog Island life saving station reported that it feared the Sachem, which sailed from Boston, is pivoted on an old wreck.

Mrs. Astor Denies Joining Suffragists

NEW YORK, Feb. 24.—Mrs. John Jacob Astor denies that she has joined the Woman Suffragists or has allied herself with any woman's political party. Mrs. Astor says she is deeply interested in the subject, but she does not care to give her position at present.

Military Ball Tonight.

The non-commissioned officers and the privates of the Ninth Regiment will hold their annual military ball at the East Armory on East Newton street tonight. Among the State officials expected are Governor Walsh and Lieutenant-Governor Barry.

Alumni of Hamilton to Raise a Million

At the annual reunion of the New England Association of Hamilton College Alumni, held at the Hotel Thorndike, a campaign was launched to raise a million dollar endowment fund. C. G. Martin of New York will represent the president and trustees in the campaign, which will cover a period of five years. He proposes to raise at least $200,000 directly from the alumni.

Bird Declares He Is Not a Quitter

"Whether or not I become a candidate for Governor next Fall will depend upon whether or not I deem it my duty to become a candidate," declared Charles Sumner Bird before the Beverly Progressive Club. "Whether I can win or cannot win will make no difference. I was not born a quitter."

Unemployed Ask Aid of Walsh and Curley

Governor Walsh and Mayor Curley were today asked, by a committee selected at a meeting of the unemployed, to throw open the armories and basements of other public buildings for sleeping purposes and the distribution of food for those out of work. They also asked for work.

ROSLINDALE PASTORS FIGHT SUNDAY SHOW

Lively opposition has been aroused in Roslindale over the granting of a license to Charles J. Gorman, manager of the Roslindale Theatre, to give Sunday performances. Soon after the fact became known a letter of protest was sent to Mayor Curley. He has ordered a hearing for Thursday at 2.30 o'clock.

The Rev. Lloyd L. Carr, pastor of the Roslindale Baptist Church; the Rev. John P. Cummins, pastor of the Church of the Sacred Heart; the Rev. George S. E. Troop, pastor of the Roslindale Unitarian Church, and Mrs. George A. Tyzzer, president of the Roslindale Community Club, were outspoken in opposition to the Sunday license.

Manager Gorman said he was surprised there should be any objection to Sunday evening performances.

Girl Thrown Off Toboggan.

Catherine Connera, sixteen, of No. 27 Brookside avenue, Jamaica Plain, was badly hurt when thrown off a toboggan while coasting on School-masters Hill in Franklin park. She is in the City Hospital.

SEEK SOURCE OF BIG FORTUNE RAISED TO KEEP THAW IN ASYLUM

ALBANY, N. Y., Feb. 24.—Steps to bare the source of funds used by William Travers Jerome, in his pursuit of Harry K. Thaw, have been taken by Thaw's friends.

By showing where the money used by Jerome—said to amount to over $200,000 since the dash from Matteawan—is coming from, Thaw's friends hope to end the long man hunt, which has already swung through the Old Dominion and three States of the Union.

FORTUNE TO KEEP THAW IN ASYLUM.

All this may be effected through the medium of a resolution today before the New York Assembly, introduced by Representative Golden of New York.

The resolution calls for a full accounting of all the money spent in the pursuit of Thaw.

Mrs. Mary Copley Thaw, the prisoner's devoted mother, Thaw himself, and the lawyers on their side of the case have contended that the gold back of Jerome in his fight against Thaw was furnished largely by private parties interested in keeping Thaw behind the bars of Matteawan.

It is intimated that Jerome has already spent a fortune in his pursuit of Thaw, "the hunted man."

"MADHOUSE MILLIONS PLOT."

Detectives are said to have been hired by the Thaws to ferret out the parties behind the attempt to bring back Thaw, referred to by Thaw's mother as the "madhouse millions plot."

The lawyers claim to have discovered that there is no New York statute authorizing the spending of State money to bring back an escaped "lunatic."

The resolution before the Assembly demands that Attorney-General Carmody make the report to that body on the expenses incurred by the State authorities in seeking to "get Thaw."

Among the expenses as to which they are anxious returns should be made are said to be:

Jerome's hiring of a special train to go after Thaw.

The securing of the services of numerous detectives.

The engaging of lawyers in both Canada and the United States to aid in the great legal battle.

Efforts to indict Thaw in Dutchess and New York Counties.

Hotel bills incurred by agents of the State of New York in prosecuting the case.

PUBLIC MONEYS "WASTED."

The Assembly resolution was introduced by Assemblyman Golden, Democrat, of New York city. It asks that the report show how much money has been paid to William Travers Jerome and others.

The resolution says that moneys spent have been a "wanton waste of the public money of this tax-ridden State and against the policy of retrenchment of the Governor as outlined in his messages to the Legislature."

Demand is made for Attorney-General Carmody to explain why Jerome was authorized to go into Dutchess and Westchester Counties to get indictments against Thaw, while that privilege was recently refused to District Attorney Whitman of New York.

Other explanations desired by the resolution are why such attempts as have been made to bring back Thaw are not being made in the case of Edward L. Brown, under indictment for killing his father in Kings County, but who was committed to Matteawan and escaped with one Sheldon also under indictment. Other cases are also cited.

TO RESTRAIN COMPTROLLER.

The resolution asked the Assembly and Senate to go on record as opposed to further proceedings to bring Thaw back to this State, and prohibits the attorney-general and State comptroller from authorizing and certifying expenditures so far made in Thaw case.

The State Comptroller reports that Jerome has not yet presented any bill for expenses incurred in the pursuit of Thaw.

Prominent New Yorkers are known to have been long under the espionage of the Thaw detectives. The most sensational developments are promised. If private funds are backing the fight against Thaw, his counsel have declared that they see something sinister in this use of money to put Thaw again in Matteawan.

It has been openly charged that private parties in New York were interested in the fight against Thaw in order to save themselves from disgraceful exposure and possible imprisonment.

The new move is expected to prove a big card in the defence of the prisoner.

Industrial School 'Graduates' Praised

"Graduates" of the Industrial School for Boys at Shirley held their second annual banquet at the city Club last evening, and were made to feel that they are not outcasts but will be given a helping hand in every honest endeavor. Carl Heglins was toastmaster. Ex-Governor Curtis Guild, ex-Judge Robert G. Harris, Vice-Chairman Charles H. Adams of the State Board of Charities, Judge Harvey H. Baker, Representative Fred P. Greenwood, Charles M. Davenport, James J. Sheehan, David F. Tilley, Roy M. Cushman and Superintendent George F. Campbell of the school were speakers.

Fails to Identify Girl as His Daughter

SPRINGDALE, Ark., Feb. 24.—The child held as Catherine Winters, the kidnaped daughter of Dr. W. A. Winters of New Castle, Ind., was declared by the physician not to be his child.

The girl was found at Huntsville, Ark., with a man who gave the name of George Stuart.

BACKACHE IS A DANGER SIGNAL

Kidney Troubles, Bladder Disorders, Rheumatism, and Serious Diseases Follow.

There are other symptoms, such as pains in the region of the kidneys, nervousness, dizziness, tired and worn-out feeling, weak bladder, painful, scalding, or urinary troubles, which are just as dangerous, for the the slightest kidney derangement if neglected may develop into the deadly Bright's Disease, Dropsy or Diabetes.

It is not only dangerous, but needless, for you to suffer, and endure the tortures of these troubles, for the new discovery, Croxone, quickly and surely ends all such misery.

There is no more effective remedy known for the cure of kidney, bladder trouble, and rheumatism, than this new scientific preparation, because it removes the cause. It soaks right into the kidneys, through the walls and linings, cleans out the clogged-up pores, neutralizes and dissolves the poisonous uric acid and waste matter, that lodges in the joints and muscles and cause those horrible rheumatic pains, and makes the kidneys filter the poison from the blood and drives it out of the system.

Three doses of Croxone a day, for a few days is often all that is ever needed to cure the worst backache or overcome disagreeable urinary disorders, and you can take it with the assurance that nothing on earth will so quickly overcome the worst case of kidney, bladder trouble, or rheumatism.

You will find Croxone different from all other remedies. There is nothing else like it. It is so prepared that it is practically impossible to take it into the human system without results. An original package costs but a trifle at any first class drug store. All druggists are authorized to personally return the purchase price if Croxone should fail in a single case.

THE AMERICAN SUGAR REFINING CO. Address: New York City

SHOW FILMS AT RALLY ON FIRE PREVENTION

Colonel Lewis T. Bryn, Commissioner of Labor for New Jersey; Robert D. Kohn, president of the National Fire Protection Association of New York, and Mayor Curley will be speakers and J. Randolph Coolidge, Jr., will preside at tonight's meeting in Faneuil Hall to educate the public, especially the employes of factories and big stores on the subject of fire prevention and protection. Motion pictures will illustrate Mr. Bryan's address.

"The one greatest preventable waste loss in Boston today is the fire loss," said Fire Commissioner Cole today. "The one department of the city in which there is the greatest possibility of saving is cost is the fire department. Last year in Boston the fire losses were more than $3,000,000 and the cost of maintaining the department was $1,925,000. The human toll was forty-one lives."

The Legislative Committee on Metropolitan Affairs will hold a hearing at the state house tomorrow, and it is desired to rally at the meeting in Faneuil Hall tonight all possible support for the fire prevention bill which has been introduced by the Chamber of Commerce. The bill will be explained in detail at the mass meeting.

A long list of organizations favor its passage.

Weak Lungs Often Lead to Serious Illness

If you have weak lungs, you are generally subject to colds or throat troubles. And easily susceptible to serious Lung Trouble. In many such persons, cold or bronchial troubles leave the lungs in a much weakened condition. Eckman's Alterative is a medicine for the throat and lungs which has been found to be very beneficial, even when a change of climate and other treatments failed to bring relief. Read of this case:—

231 S. Atlantic Ave., Haddonfield, N. J.
"Gentlemen: In the Fall of 1903 I contracted a severe cold which settled on my lungs. At last I began to raise sputum, and my physician then told me I must go to California immediately. At this time I was advised to take Eckman's Alterative. I dosed at home and commenced taking it the last week in October. I began to improve, and the first week in January, 1904, I resumed my regular occupation, having gained 25 pounds, fully restored to health. It is now seven years since my recovery has been effected and I cannot praise Eckman's Alterative too highly."

Some Authoritative Answers to a Much Mooted Question—And a Safe Surmise:

What Emerson Might Have Said—

About That Most Competent Man, That World-beaten Path, and That Oft-Sprung Mousetrap

IT ALL started one night some years ago in a Kansas City newspaper office with two young men striving to fit certain wise sayings to the virtues of advertising.

Sage utterances of many philosophers were pointed advertising-ward by the paraphrasing pencils of this pair, until they came upon those lines since so often ascribed to Emerson—and others:

"If a man can write a better book, preach a better sermon, or make a better mousetrap than his neighbor, though he build his house in the woods, the world will make a beaten path to his door."

This gave them pause. So great and so simple a truth seemed impossible of improvement, even in advertising's great cause. To reprint it as it stood seemed the thing to do.

Not until then was it discovered that the lines lacked sponsorship—and immediately a lively guessing contest was under way. Who was the parent of this bit of wisdom? What philosopher had expounded it?

One name after another was suggested—covering a writing period of at least two thousand years. Finally it was decided that Emerson was the one who should have said it, if he did not.

And Emerson was given due credit forthwith.

Thus was launched upon the sea of publicity that which was destined to be food for nationwide argument. Moreover, that argument wasn't delayed long in the starting.

Following close upon the heels of the quotation's publication by the Kansas City newspaper came a letter from an advertiser—a prominent manufacturer of building tile.

Said this manufacturer: "If there is truth in that quotation, then there is no use in advertising my product because it is perfect. Therefore, in time, the world will make a beaten path to my factory."

Then for the first time was wielded the editorial pencil in the direction of Emerson's foster-progeny. The poetic was sacrificed to the practical—the muse made commercial—by adding the three words, "provided he advertise."

About this time along came some purist who disputed the Emerson authorship by reason of the presence of the word "can". The argument was advanced that perhaps many can but few DO, and that, therefore, the word had no place in the lines—that Emerson would never have put it there—that it wasn't Emersonian English.

And that started a search in the direction of Emerson's writings. Thousands of people pored over volume after volume of the Concord philosopher's works—but to little purpose. The lines could not be located.

Later we hear of the quotation from the direction of New York, where Fra Elbertus, "The Sage of East Aurora," bound it into an issue of "The Philistine"—absent-mindedly leaving off quotation marks, or any mention of the author's name.

The obvious occurred. A lot of ready-to-be-convinced people at once acclaimed Hubbard as none other than the originator—and "The Fra" when faced with the soft impeachment modestly declined to deny the authorship. Merrily the broth of debate boiled afresh, only to lose again its zest, as is the habit of broths when allowed to simmer down and be put aside.

It was just beginning to be safe to consider the discussion finally closed—to count it among the many unsolved mysteries—when a Chicago newspaper came forth with a few paragraphs under the caption, "Not Written by Emerson."

The article stated that the famous lines were from the pen of the Reverend John Paxton and were part of a sermon delivered by him in the West Presbyterian Church in New York City some years ago. Authority was quoted in the person of Reverend W. E. Barton of Oak Park, Illinois.

The New York American next prodded the argumentative portion of the public consciousness by making use of the quotation and giving credit where it seemed due—that is to the Reverend John Paxton.

Once more the fires were lighted and again the broth began to brew.

This time a literary and legal publication—The Docket—took the matter firmly in both hands and calmly and dispassionately settled it absolutely and beyond question—that is as far as The Docket was concerned.

Elbert Hubbard was eliminated in the first paragraph by the citation of the fact that the quotation had been credited to Emerson by Mrs. Sarah S. B. Yule in a book entitled, "Borrowings," complied in 1889, whereas Mr. Hubbard's "Philistine" was not begun until 1895.

To which Mr. Hubbard replied: "The fact that the 'Philistine' was started in 1895 has nothing to do with the mouse-trap quotation. I was born in 1856 and began writing hot stuff when four years old."

Dr. Paxton was also dealt with summarily by quoting a paragraph from one of his sermons which contained but a remote fragment of the same thought. It was argued that such evidence was too weak to warrant his being adjudged the much-sought author.

Here is the Paxton paragraph as put forth by The Docket:

"You may begin business in an obscure place, but if there is ability, power, and mastery of affairs in you, then all the steam boat in the river will whistle for you, and the railroads say, 'Come over and manage us.' You cannot be hid. On the other hand, if you have nothing the world wants, if you have no power to paint a picture, or manage a business, you are hidden already. You may live in your front window and drive on Fifth Avenue, but you are hid."

Finally, the Emersonian claim was set up by the reprint of a heretofore unpublished paragraph from the personal journal of that great scholar.

It reads as follows:

"If a man has good corn, or wood, or boards, or pigs to sell, or can make better chairs or knives, crucibles or church organs than anybody else, you will find a broad, hard-beaten road to his house, though it be in the woods. And if a man know the law, people will find it out, though he live in a pine shanty, and resort to him."

And this The Docket considered sufficiently kindred to that under discussion to establish beyond reasonable doubt the Emerson relationship. After rendering this final and judicial decision, it added this scholarly postscript:

"If a man can phrase a telling thought, though he write it in his private journal, or speak it in a lyceum lecture, the world will catch it up and blazon his name on postcards."

To give the saving humorous strain to the thought, The Docket would have done well to add:

"If a man build a better path than his neighbors, the world will beat it with mouse-traps to his door, though he live in the woods."

At any rate, we see Emerson once more seated on this unsteady throne of authorship and all the pretenders banished, but not for long. Truth will be heard—and the truth in this instance seemed to be on the side of the Reverend John Paxton.

Dr. Paxton himself was finally appealed to in the matter and his reply coming through the hands of another person, is as interesting as it is enlightening. Under date of December 4th, 1913, J. M. Mealy of Sewickley, Pa., writes:

"My friend of fifty years, Dr. John Paxton, of New York City, sent me your letter of November 18th, with the request that I answer it for him.

"There is no doubt about Dr. Paxton's authorship of the lines of which the quotation in question was taken. I heard the sermon in which it was written, delivered over thirty years ago at Chautauqua, N. Y.

"It ran in this way, 'If a man write a better book, preach a better sermon, or a woman sing a more beautiful song, than his or her neighbor, then, though the man preaches away off in an obscure parish, or the woman sings in the Aroostook wilderness of Maine in a country schoolhouse, the world will have that sermon, that song, and make a road to find him or her.'

"Dr. Paxton's custom was to vary from the manuscript in preaching, leaving out and adding to, etc., etc."

Let us hope then that the discussion will end with the letter of this reverend old gentleman—for such an end seems fitting—a benediction as it were.

Assuming even that the Reverend Mr. Paxton got the inspiration for his lines from Emerson, the Paxton version is certainly the closest to that which is current today.

Even so, it is safe to surmise what Emerson might have said had he known of the potency of present-day advertising, and the part it has played in the advancement of world ideas.

Surely the words of so advanced a thinker, so keen an analyst, would have been in sympathetic accord with this mightiest of modern commercial forces. Certainly it would seem that he would have stood sponsor for the three added words which bring the doctrine down to date:

"If a man write a better book, preach a better sermon, or make a better mousetrap than his neighbor, though he build his house in the wilderness, the world will make a beaten path to his door—provided he advertise."

POLICEMEN DENY STORY OF ASSAULT

Patrolmen John T. Flatley and Roland P. Green are prepared to prove that the beating they are accused of having given Edward C. Fitzgerald, a fellow officer at the East Dedham street station, is a myth.

This was made known through friends of both officers today, who now say Fitzgerald was not assaulted at all, but that he received his injuries early last Saturday morning by falling on an iron ash barrel.

Flatley and Green, their friends say, have the names of ten citizens who witnessed the affair, and who stand ready to swear that Fitzgerald attempted to assault them, falling and cutting himself instead of being beaten.

FITZGERALD IS FIRM.

Fitzgerald, on the other hand, still maintains that he was brutally assaulted by Flatley and Green in an alleyway off Garland street, early Saturday morning, and the case is being widely discussed today in police circles.

Fitzgerald's charges against his fellow officers, and their counter charges against him, will be made the subject of a rigid investigation by Commissioner O'Meara, through a trial board composed of police captains under whom neither of the men in question ever served.

Patrolmen Flatley and Green, in their own defense, today made known through mutual friends the following version of the trouble:

"We had been to a dance and had left for home about 2:30 Saturday morning.

"We were in plain clothes and walked along Dover street to Sheppard's drug store, at Dover and Washington street.

"While waiting for a car in that store we saw Patrolman Fitzgerald, who was in full uniform and on duty, standing under the 'L' stairs outside.

"INTENSELY ON FIRE."

"He seemed to be very unsteady on his feet and there were a number of people standing around him.

"Fitzgerald was muttering to himself and we thought we might to go out where he was as he looked to be in bad shape.

"As we started toward him, from the drug store, he walked down Washington street, toward Garland street. He was followed by some eight or ten citizens.

"He turned into Garland street, the crowd still following him, and we hurried to overtake him. There being no store doors for him to try the fastenings of, we wondered what he was going to do.

"Fitzgerald staggered along until he reached an alleyway that leads off Garland street. We noticed an iron ash barrel standing at the alley corner, frozen solidly into the ice-covered sidewalk. As Fitzgerald started down the alleyway he slipped and fell heavily.

"We hurried toward him as fast as possible, intent upon assisting him to his feet. When we picked him up, there was a deep gash under his left eye and his gray sweater was stained with blood.

"Whether he struck against the iron ash-barrel in falling or struck his head on the icy walk couldn't be determined from where we were. But no one struck him. He simply fell on the ice.

"We ran to him, pushing our way through the crowd, and helped him to his feet, but he commenced abusing us.

"He said: 'I'll get you for this.'

"Fitzgerald then took off his hat and unbuckled his belt.

"Later he pulled off his coat and folding it up, placed it on the ash barrel, saying: 'I can lick both of you. Right here and now.'

"The blood was still flowing from the cut over his eye and he made several wild passes at us. By this time there were fully twenty-five citizens in the crowd and we grabbed him as he slipped again.

"We told him not to be foolish, but he paid no attention to us and continued to struggle.

"ONE OF US HELD HIM."

"One of us held him, and the other got him into his clothing. Then he started to walk along Garland, toward Washington street, talking to himself all the time.

"On hearing that he was going to the station to prefer charges against us, we took the names of eight or ten citizens who had witnessed the affair as a matter of self-protection.

"These citizens can, and unquestionably will, bear us out in all we say. We did not assault Fitzgerald, but tried to help him. Fitzgerald himself, at the station house later, acknowledged that he had been friendly with both of us up to that time and that we had never had any trouble with him.

"We are not afraid of any investigation and have placed our case before the proper officials, with the names of our witnesses."

TANGO HAT GORGEOUS

Has More Dips Than Dance

GOLD YELLOW, GREEN

CHICAGO, Feb. 24.—Hats for the coming season are to be little things—but they will certainly be gay, judging from those shown at the annual convention of the National Association of Milliners.

The tango hat takes many forms and is made up principally of emerald green and gold yellow that are recognized as the colors of this cosmopolitan dance. On every tango hat there is sure to be a flaunting high bow of bright ribbon, standing stiffly up at one side, and the hat itself has as many dips and curves as the Argentine dance.

One of the new Spring hats is the "ear muff" hat, which has a little pocket made of taffeta silk for the left ear, from which depends a huge jet ornament.

The flight of birds to the North is marked in the "bird" hat, a billowy mass of white lace, wired (probably representing the clouds) trimmed with a bird made of jet sequins, with wings outspread in full flight.

The harem hat, of bright emerald green, is trimmed with a string of enormous black beads, falling in a long loop from either side of the brim.

APRAHANIAN NOW DENIES 'CONFESSION'

Mrs. Manoog Aprahanian, mother of Nishi Aprahanian, the sixteen-year-old Watertown boy who "confessed to killing Ishmayel Imerly-Ophlo, a Turk, in Watertown arsenal, is seemingly mystified in her doubts as to the truth of her son's statement. Today he denies the "confession."

Manoog Aprahanian, father of the boy, who turned him over to the police, is now also a convert to the belief that his son is innocent.

Tomorrow in the Waltham District Court a hearing will be given young Aprahanian and his chum, Manoog Garabedian, also accused, and the four other Armenians held as necessories before the fact. Judge Luce will preside.

FEARED HIS FATHER.

Fear of his father is said to have prompted young Aprahanian to accuse himself. He told his brother when she visited him in his cell:

"I didn't kill the Turk. Papa came to my room, and, looking at me angrily, said: 'Did you kill Ishmayel' and to this I said: 'No papa, I did not kill the Turk.'

"He was still very mad and said: 'I tell you you did. Manoog said that you did it.' I got very frightened then and said: 'Yes, papa, I killed Ishmayel,' as I was very much afraid of my father and as he didn't believe me, anyhow, I didn't care if I did have to go to jail for the murder.

"I was very nervous at the time, as I had been helping the police as an interpreter at the station house when they talked to the other men, and my mind was filled with what these men had told to me in my language and which I had then interpreted to the lieutenant in English. I became very frightened of papa and little realized what I was saying to him, only that I wanted to get out of his sight.

LONELY IN CELL.

"I got brave when I saw the chief coming up the road, and as I had helped him I thought that he would now help me. I then told him all about it and even went so far as to sign my name under the confession.

"I now realize my folly, but it was through my fear of papa's anger. I thought I would not be lonesome in here, but I wish I was out again."

Hungry, Stole Milk, Shot by Policeman

POETS MOVED TO GIVE MAYOR'S AUTO A NAME

Whoa, Pegasus! Dinna fash yerself!

The winged horse of poetry is running away with Mayor Curley's new automobile. "Peg" has a bit of Scottish accent at that.

The AMERICAN has called for suggestions for a name for the new car. The Hibbard auto was "Non-Partisan Nance." The Fitzgerald one was "Sweet Adeline," of course. Mayor Curley's has yet to be christened officially.

And now comes John F. Grant of No. 9 Holden street, Dorchester, with a suggestion in verse, as follows:

"Seeing Jamie disna sing a sang,
Or dance the highland fling,
I deet it widna be far wrang
Tae on that motor thing.

The "BOSTON ROOMER."

William St. John of No. 28 Whiting avenue, Dedham, writes:

"Since Mayor Curley is giving the 'cops' of Booming Boston, why not call the auto 'Curleycue,' or 'Kurliku'?"

Mrs. Walter Millman of No. 8 Mt. Pleasant avenue, Roxbury, suggests that "Paulmarie" would appeal to the Mayor. This is an adaptation of the names of two of his children.

Other suggestions in today's mail are:

"Success," William F. Kelliher, No. 33 Stanhope street.

"The Curley Kid," Agnes A. Elkins, No. 521 Massachusetts avenue.

"Progressive Car," Herbert Hart, No. 3 Mechanic street, Allston.

"Cutty Curley," Marguerite Harris, No. 16 Chapman street, Charlestown.

"Lady Mary" (for Mrs. Curley), from a girl of twelve.

"Industrial" or "Invincible," Mary Cook, No. 235 Dorchester street, South Boston.

"Ella," "Economy," "Executive," Mrs. John F. Cook, No. 235 Dorchester street, South Boston.

"My Beautiful Lady" (for Mrs. Curley), Mrs. Deanie F. Courtney, No. 673 Massachusetts avenue.

"Fear Not," Miss Adelaide Wilfert, No. 2480 Washington street, Roxbury.

"Prosperity," Mrs. Margaret Nugle, No. 27 Lawrence street, Roxbury.

Charles W. Morse Strangely Missing; Shaved Moustache

PARIS, Feb. 24.—Charles W. Morse who, it is said here, is recouping his fortunes, has disappeared. At any rate, he has imposed perfect seclusion on himself.

Mr. and Mrs. Morse embarked on the steamer in New York at the last moment on February 12. On arriving at Cherbourg, Mr. Morse emerged from his cabin with a clean shaven face, he had parted with his moustache. His appearance was so changed it was difficult to recognize him.

He was not on the boat train from Cherbourg. Many inquiries at hotels and elsewhere have not found him there.

Lowell Woman in Vain Hunt for Son

COUNCIL BLUFFS, Ia., Feb. 24.—Mrs. L. M. McBride, an aged widow of Lowell, Mass., is in this city searching for her son, John Henry McBride, who last week telegraphed her from this city asking her to come to him. The son is an epileptic and in the telegram stated that he had just undergone another attack. She has been unable to locate the son, who is forty years old, and believes he recovered sufficiently to start for home alone.

A Cheap Ticket and a Free Map and Pictures All About the Big West and Northwest Country

How Good That MUSTEROLE Feels!

Ah-h! That's delicious relief for those sore muscles, those stiff joints, that lame back.

MUSTEROLE is a clean, white ointment, made with the oil of mustard and other home simples.

It does the work of the old-fashioned mustard plaster, minus the plaster and minus the blister!

You simply rub MUSTEROLE on the spot where the pain is—rub it on briskly—and the pain is gone.

No muss, no bother. Just comforting, soothing relief—first a gentle glow, then a delightful sense of coolness. And best of all, no blisters like the old-fashioned mustard plaster used to make.

There is nothing like MUSTEROLE for Sore Throat, Bronchitis, Tonsilitis, Croup, Stiff Neck, Asthma, Neuralgia, Headache, Congestion, Pleurisy, Rheumatism, Lumbago, Pains and Aches of the Back or Joints, Strains, Sore Muscles, Bruises, Chilblains, Frosted Feet and Colds of the Chest (it prevents Pneumonia).

Doctors and nurses frankly recommend MUSTEROLE. It is used in large hospitals.

At your druggist's, in 25c and 50c jars, and a special large hospital size for $2.50.

Accept no substitute. If your druggist cannot supply you, send 25c or 50c to the MUSTEROLE Company, Cleveland, Ohio, and we will send you a jar, postage prepaid. (66)

CHARLES H. KELLEY, Philadelphia, Pa., says: "I have great faith in Musterole; indeed, I have prescribed it for several of my patients this week; it is a very valuable remedy."

CROWD COURT TO HEAR COUPLE HELD FOR TANGO

LOWELL, Feb. 24.—Hundreds of persons crowded into the local police court today to hear Angelina Marcotte and Frank Hennessy explain to Judge Thomas J. Enwright why and how they danced the tango at Lincoln Hall last Friday night. This is the first dancing arrest case in Massachusetts.

They were disappointed because at the request of the defendants' counsel a continuance was granted until next week. Much discussion has been created on the question since the couple were arrested.

Miss Marcotte was represented by Lawyer George Allard and J. Joseph O'Connor represented Hennessy. Superintendent Redmond Welch of the police department was the prosecuting officer.

Patrolman Clark had been detailed by the superintendent of police to attend public dances and to complain if dancers where he believed that they were violating the law.

On his evidence a warrant was issued against the accused.

Green and Purple Wigs for Actresses

NEW YORK, Feb. 24.—Colored wigs to match the gowns they wore were introduced by two actresses. The appearance of the latest fad from Paris created a sensation in two up-town hotels. One of the young women wore a green wig to match a Nile gown and the other a purple one that blended with her plum-colored suit.

PUT BURDEN OF BUFFUM PROOF ON THE STATE

LITTLE VALLEY, N. Y., Feb. 24.—The task of proving that neither threat nor coercion had been used to get a confession from Mrs. Cynthia Buffum, on trial here for poisoning her husband, was today put up to the prosecution by Justice Brown. Following her departure from the stand, where she had sworn that she had been made drunk and threatened by detectives, Mrs. Buffum was told by the court that the confession could not be used against her unless Special Prosecutor Cole could prove it had been made voluntarily.

The presence of the accused woman on the witness stand brought out an enormous crowd, which taxed the capacity of the courtroom. Mrs. Buffum resumed the witness stand for cross-examination, having begun her story yesterday.

Thomas O'Grady, a private detective of Buffalo, whose operatives secured the "confession" from Mrs. Buffum, followed the woman on the stand and said: "Mrs. Buffum was not drunk when she made her statement. She was not coerced in any way."

Woman Burned to Death by Oil Stove

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., Feb. 24—Locking from room to room with her clothing wrapped in flames, Mrs. Amanda Jellison, seventy, set fire to her home on Lincoln avenue, and later her body, badly burned, was found on the cellar stairs. Her clothes were ignited when an oil stove exploded.

Couldn't Blame George for Swearing

NORTHAMPTON, Feb. 24.—Former President William H. Taft, in an address before 1,000 Smith College girls today, told of Washington's temper he said: "Washington talked over a treaty with twenty-six Senators and they suggested this and that amendment and pointed out this, that and the other defect, and finally Washington said: 'I will be damned if I ever go to the Senate again.'

"Do you blame him?"

Students Losers in Dormitory Fire

EVANSTON, Ill., Feb. 24.—Heck Hall, a dormitory of Northwestern University, was in ruins today and nearly 100 students lost everything but the clothes they had on when the building was destroyed by fire last night. The loss to this university and the students was estimated at $120,000. Big snowdrifts stalled the fire-fighting apparatus.

Street Car Man Killed by Train

WACHUSETT, Feb. 24.—Henry Withington, aged thirty-one, a street railway conductor, was killed when he stepped in front of a westbound Boston & Maine train while avoiding an eastbound train at the station here today. Withington was carrying a mailbag from the station to his car for Gardner.

Everett Vessel, 40 Aboard, Lost in Ice Floes

SYDNEY, N. S., Feb. 24.—While wireless inquiries were incessantly flashed out over the frozen North Atlantic today the government ice breaking steamer Stanley set off down the coast in search of the Dominion Coal Company collier Louisburg, with forty men on board, which has not been heard from since she left Everett, Mass., last Tuesday, for Louisburg, Cape Breton.

Under ordinary circumstances this would have been only a two days' run, but heavy ice floes expected from Belle Isle Strait more than one hundred miles to Northeast, offering such unusual conditions as navigation has not known in years, it is feared the Stanley is either helpless in the grasp of the ice field or else her engines with a smashed hull the smaller steamships are also reported to be marooned in the floes.

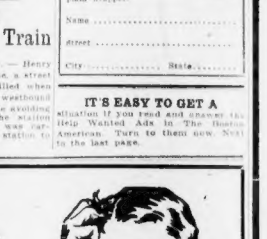
There's a Reason For Aches and Pains



Often some unsuspected habit, such as coffee drinking, is the root of the trouble.

The average coffee drinker who suffers from sleeplessness, headache, indigestion, nervousness or heart trouble usually says, "Coffee doesn't hurt me," until some day Nature hauls him up with a jerk.

It's poor business to trade health and a clear brain for a few cups of coffee.

POSTUM

in place of coffee, has put many a man and woman on the Road to Wellville.

Postum is made of prime wheat and a small portion of molasses. It has a delicious Java-like flavour, but none of the drugs, "caffeine" and "tannin" which make coffee a health destroyer.

If your own judgment leads to a trial of Postum, for, say 10 days, and you begin to sleep soundly, digest food better, and your nerves get steady, these signs of returning health will show

"There's a Reason" for POSTUM

Postum now comes in two forms.

Regular Postum—must be well boiled. 15c and 25c packages.

Instant Postum—a soluble powder. A teaspoonful, stirred in a cup of hot water, makes a delicious beverage instantly. 30c and 50c tins.

The great majority of these coats are Kuppenheimer garments, which is recommendation enough for any overcoat.

There's plenty of time to wear these coats, but precious little time to sell them, and so to make assurance doubly sure we offer them at $9.50—a price which has nothing at all to do with their real value.

BRITAIN WILL DEMAND BENTON FACTS OF VILLA

at Juarez declared last week that the American prisoner had been taken to this city by Villa to stand trial on charges of being a spy.

Villa also declared today that he had no knowledge of the three other men, Lawrence, Chrisman and Compton, whose friends at El Paso say they have fallen into the hands of the rebels and met the same fate as that of William S. Benton, the principal subject upon which he has refused to speak. Villa's statement in reference to Benton follows:

"Gustave Bauch, the man arrested, more than a week ago in Juarez under suspicion of being a spy, was set free in Juarez. He was not executed as was reported by an El Paso newspaper, upon the word of a stage man neither was he brought to Chihuahua City. Bauch has a pass and he can not be turned to the troops in El Paso you may rest assured he has taken advantage of the earliest opportunity to the Benton case to take his departure to some other part of the country. He is not in Chihuahua and he has not been executed by order of Juarez perhaps I myself am the order for his release."

Defending himself from charges that the other missing men had been taken prisoner or slain by his soldiers, Villa said:

"I am frequently asked to find missing Americans or missing Englishmen and the supposition has gone abroad that I am making a habit of either imprisoning or executing all foreigners who come into Mexico.

"In my heart I am sorry that I had to order Benton's execution, but there is no other course open. I owe it to the cause I am fighting for and to the men who are fighting for the same cause to take care of myself. I am not a bloodthirsty man, though I have been painted as such. It is my wish that all foreigners in Mexico be protected and they will be protected as long as they do not interfere with my work.

MEXICAN PAPERS POINT TO WILSON AS 'ACCOMPLICE' OF VILLA

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 24.—All the newspapers of Mexico City assailed the American government and President Wilson today as an outcome of the Benton case, but more particularly bitter in its attack on President Wilson, declaring he was "Villa's accomplice" in the killing of Benton because of his Mexican policy."

Other newspapers take this occasion to draw a contrast between President Huerta and President Wilson as to their treatment of foreigners, declaring that with Huerta foreigners are far safer than in Villa land, that Americans are treated with the utmost consideration even when they transgress the laws.

President Huerta and his advisers remained silent on the subject of Benton today, but it is known that Huerta is taking advantage of this opportunity to show that he is the strong man, the only civilized government in Mexico.

PRESIDENT WILSON AND CABINET GET REPORTS ON MEXICO

WASHINGTON, Feb. 24.—A discussion of the Mexican situation between President Wilson and Secretary of State Bryan delayed the Cabinet meeting today, and from the length of the conference it is believed that important reports were placed before the President by his chief advisers.

When the conference ended the Secretary refused to discuss the matter with the newspaper men, but shortly after he left the President Senator Shively acting chairman of the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations, was summoned to the White House.

Senator Shively remained there for some time. It was intimated that the execution of Benton and the disappearance of Gustave Bauch were the chief subjects of discussion between the President and Secretary of State and that Senator Shively was summoned as a result of the decision reached by certain Senators to demand from the administration more energetic action in Mexico.

Every world power with the exception of the United States will shortly have armed marines or blue jackets guarding its interests in Mexico City. Germany and Switzerland already have legation guards there. France and Japan have let this government know that they have decided on similar action. And the other nations maintaining separate embassies or legations in Huerta's capital have let it be known they will follow the example. Only this government will maintain its present position.

The question has been thoroughly canvassed, and it was understood today that Rear Admiral Frank Fletcher, commanding the American fleet on the east coast, reported that he can get all of the men needed to guard Americans through from Vera Cruz in twenty-four hours. It was feared here, however, that the presence of armed Americans in the capital might precipitate the crowded anti-American demonstration.

DOCTOR TOLD RANTOUL HOW TO RE-WIN WIFE

sano testified, "if he wished to win back his wife's love and to rehabilitate their former domestic happiness. He said that was what he was anxious to do.

"I told him that in that case he must pursue a different course from the one he was using. I told him that he was in much the same position as if he were not married at all and was wooing a woman for her love.

"I asked him if he was going to woo a woman, if he would adopt the course he had been following. He admitted to me that he would not.

Mr. and Mrs. Rantoul were both on hand early today with their counsel and witnesses. Rantoul sat between his attorneys in front of Judge Hardy's desk in the East Cambridge court. Mrs. Rantoul sat at her attorney's table at the left and a little to the rear of Rantoul. They were separated by only about ten feet.

SHIELDS NERVOUS.

Dr. Putnam, who commenced his testimony last Friday, was examined today by Attorney Thomas W. Proctor.

Q.—Tell us Doctor, when Mrs. Rantoul first came to you for treatment. A.—August 1911? A.—August 21 or 28, the first time.

Q.—What did she notice about her appearance? A.—She appeared weak. She said she was not able to sleep, was complained of headaches.

Q.—What about her nerves? A.—Her nerves were seriously affected and weakened. By that I do not wish to say that she was hysterical, she was suffering at the time from nervous shock.

Q.—Did you prescribe for her? A.—Yes. I gave her a tonic to build her up, to avoid worry as much as possible.

Q.—Did you advise her as how to deal with her husband? A.—Yes.

Q.—What was your advice? A.—I advised her to keep herself under perfect control. I told her that if her husband said anything to her that she must not answer back, but must keep quiet.

Q.—Did you ever interview Mr. Rantoul? A.—Yes. I talked with him once.

Q.What did you say to Mr. Rantoul? A.—I told him that I was interested merely in bringing about better conditions for Mrs. Rantoul, so that her health might be recovered. I asked him whether he desired to rehabilitate his family life. I told him I knew that I was "butting in," but that I wanted to help them both, and to bring peace if possible.

"I asked him if he loved his wife and took his wife's affections. He said he did. I asked him if he thought that the methods he was pursuing were likely to accomplish that. He replied that the stories she told may have been exaggerated. I realized that Mrs. Rantoul had a very strong feeling for Mr. Rantoul and I had every reason to believe it to be a true feeling. I told Mr. Rantoul that he was therefore, somewhat in the position of a man who was not married at all and who wanted to win the affection of a woman.

SAID HE WOULD TRY.

"I asked him if he would woo a woman to whom he was not married in the manner that he had taken toward his wife. While he did not answer directly he intimated that he would not. I told him that I wished to smooth out matters and that I wished to help him and Mrs. Rantoul. I was anxious to establish a "modus vivendi" between them.

Q.—Did you ask him what he objected to? A.—Yes, he told me he objected to his wife working for the Children's Aid Society. I asked him why. He said he didn't like to have her work for them because of the children. I asked him if he thought the children were being neglected and he said no. I told him that was one thing I could not possibly ask his wife to do. I thought that the work that she was doing for the society was very valuable to her because of her state of mind. I felt that for her to give it up might be dangerous. He said he wanted her to see the children more. I asked him if he didn't think that a great many society women, who were not occupied with such charitable work, saw their children as little and less perhaps, and he acquiesced in that, without answering directly. I begged him to adopt a different method toward his wife. He said he would try.

Q.—Did you say anything about his wife's attitude when he was nice to her? A.—Yes. I asked him what effect it had on her when he was nice to her. He said she was rather hard on him whenever he was nice to her. I asked him what he meant by "hard." He answered that she behaved as if nothing at all had happened. I asked him then if that wasn't exactly what he wanted. He said that he thought she should be more contrite.

Q.—What was Mrs. Rantoul's condition prior to the operation about which you consulted Dr. Davenport? A.—She was in a very excited condition and had lost flesh. She was so weak on one visit that I didn't think she would be able to go home, and I asked her to lie on the couch in my office. Her convalescence was very slow. She was in a serious condition. She was nervous and trembling. She suffered from mild nervous shocks. She was highly apprehensive. She feared something was going to happen to her.

HEALTH UNDERMINED.

Considering Mrs. Rantoul's condition, mentally and physically, whether or not abuse and abusive talk would contribute to the condition in which you found her? A.—Yes, I think it would.

Q.—Did you consider her recovery normal, or did you think it had been retarded? A.—I thought it had been retarded.

Q.—Did you form an opinion as to the cause? A.—Yes. I thought it was due to exciting and fatiguing events that happened between my treatments.

Q.—Would abusive talk and treatment on the part of Mr. Rantoul be an adequate cause? A.—Yes.

Q.—Assuming that abusive talk, abusive talk in a hostile and sneering attitude, with accusations of a sexual or physical force, would such conditions affect Mrs. Rantoul's health? A.—Yes, they would have an injurious effect.

A.—Assuming all these unfavorable conditions, to what extent would they be responsible for Mrs. Rantoul's condition in the Fall of 1911 and the Winter of 1912? A.—They would be the main cause.

Q.—When did you cease attending Mrs. Rantoul? A.—I have not ceased yet, but my treatment then was more regular.

Q.—During that period did you consider that her health depreciated very much? A.—It did.

Q.—Did you find Mrs. Rantoul to be a pure minded woman? A.—She was. I never saw anything to give any other impression.

Dr. Putnam was cross-examined by Attorney Dunn. He was asked how often he had treated Mrs. Rantoul before August, 1911. He replied that he had seen her only three times prior to that, "once when she was a child in Cambridge at Kinwood,' the second time at the Dorcy procession and the third time when she was in bed with her child in Cambridge."

Q.—And your patient then was the child, not the mother, was it, not? A.—Yes, I was called in consultation.

GOV. WALSH, IN PERSON, URGES THE INITIATIVE

For the first time in thirty-one years a Governor of Massachusetts appeared in person today before a committee of the Legislature and urged a favorable report upon one of the recommendations in his inaugural.

The Governor was David I. Walsh, Democrat.

The committee was the Committee on Constitutional Amendments.

The subject was the initiative and referendum. Governor Walsh wants the subject referred to the people of the Commonwealth in the form of an amendment to the Constitution.

Benjamin F. Butler was the last Governor to talk in person, and, straight from the shoulder, to a committee of the Legislature. That was in 1883, when General Butler appeared almost daily for a month to urge an investigation of the Tewksbury almshouse.

So important does Governor Walsh consider his demand for the initiative and referendum that he was careful to read his speech today from manuscript. This is what he said:

The unrest and discontent of today, as evidenced by extensive independent voting and sudden and rapid changes in the growth and dimination of political parties, is largely attributable to a widespread impression among our citizens that in many instances baneful, corporate, financial and political influences surround our public officials, which prevent them from expressing the real sentiment and opinion of the electorate in their legislative and administrative acts.

The movement for direct legislation, ofr the initiative and referendum, is an effort upon the part of the people to reduce to a minimum these influences and to limit and curb the power of public officials who may become susceptible to the agencies working against their interests in their ogovernment.

I heartily sympathize with this movement, and I deem this problem of such great importance that I have come before this committee to plead with you to give the people the power to enact such of public officials which the initiative and reefrendum gaurantees to them.

The initiative and referendum is more powerful than any anti-lobby legislation. It is destructive of more of the evils that exist in government today than any other reform. It will serve as a great agency in the hands of the people to destroy the power and influence of offensive political machines, selfish corporate and privileged interests that interfere, or at least the people believe interfere, with the usefulness and responsiveness of public officials to them.

I am submitting no form of amendment to the Constitution for your consideration. I am appearing to favor no particular bill. I have confidence in the wisdom, judgment and ability of this committee and the Legislature to draft and frame the proper legislation. I have one word of warning, however, the people will not approve your action nor can the principle be made effective in operation if the Referendum required upon legislative or referendum petitions are made so high as to be prohibitive. I do wasnt to impress upon you the necessity of the adoption of this principle and the adoption of it this year.

Freda in Again, and Police Were Foolde

The police at the Court square station today are humbler men as a result of an experience with twenty-year-old Freda Sacre.

Freda was brought to the station by Gardner Thorpe, superintendent of Bradstreet's Agency, when found her sobbing in a wind-swept doorway on Devonshire street. She had missed her cousin from Brockton at the South station, she said.

The police were sorry for her, and a plain-clothes man was sent to escort her to Mrs. White, matron of the House of Detention.

"Hello, Freda! Back again," asked Mrs. Denton. "Sure! How's everybody?" replied Freda. Freda had been released last week.

LACONIA, N. H., Feb. 24—Moses S. Ayott, who was caught in a snow squall on Lake Winnipesaukee has been found frozen to death on the ice. Ayott, with Arthur Woodman, started across the ice to Tuftonboro flats to fish.

FOR DANDRUFF, FALLING HAIR OR ITCHY SCALP—25-CENT DANDERINE

Girls! Girls! Save your hair! Make it grow luxuriant and beautiful.

If you care for heavy hair, that glistens with beauty and is radiant with life, has an irresistible softness and is fluffy and lustrous, try Danderine.

Just one application doubles the beauty of your hair, besides, it immediately dissolves every particle of dandruff; you cannot have nice, fancy, healthy hair if you have dandruff. This destructive scurf robs the hair of its lustre, its strength and its very life, and if not overcome it produces a feverishness and itching of the scalp, the hair roots famish, loosen and die; then the hair falls out fast.

If your hair has been neglected and is thin, faded, dry, scraggy or too oily get a 25-cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine at any drug store or toilet counter; apply a little as directed and ten minutes after you will say this was the best investment you ever made.

We sincerely believe, regardless of everything else advertised, that if you desire soft, lustrous, beautiful hair and lots of it—no dandruff—no itching scalp and no more falling hair, you must use Knowlton's Danderine.

BIG DROP IN 'UNDERGROUND' OF NEW HAVEN

The first return by the New Haven railroad of its old-time underground expenses made since Chairman Elliott took charge shows that Bruce Wyman, the former Harvard Law School professor, received $1,179 for services and expenses during October, November and December as "consulting counsel."

The "other expenses" take a tremendous drop from the Mellen regime. There are no newspaper men or "sentiment testers" listed as having received money.

Only Arthur P. Russell of the old lists appears again as "assistant attorney" at a salary of $500 a month. F. A. Farnham, attorney, is listed at a salary of $416.67 a month. The other expenses are for board meetings.

Sustain Demurrer in "Slavery" Case

WASHINGTON, Feb. 24.—The Supreme Court of the United States today sustained the demurrer of Charles Wilson, alias Charles Willard, and Katherine Wilson, alias Zoe Willard, to an indictment found against them by the Federal courts at Chicago, accusing them of transporting two women for immoral purposes from Milwaukee to Evanston, Ill.

Ohio Excise Tax Law Is Declared Void

WASHINGTON, Feb. 24.—Ohio's excise tax law, which imposes a tax of 4 per cent. on interstate gross earnings of all railroads in the State and special taxes on other corporations doing business, was declared valid on a decision of the Supreme Court of the United States.

All Night Phone Operators Dance

The Union Club of all-night telephone operators gave their ball in Horse Hall, Huntington avenue, with about 200 couples present. The "phone glide" and the "dip o' night" were danced. Joseph Keating was floor director, and Miss Mollie Walsh was chief of aids. Miss Kittie Sheerin headed the reception committee.

Decide Against Oyster Tax Law

WASHINGTON, Feb. 24.—A Maryland law imposing a tax of one cent a bushel on oysters shipped in commerce in that State was declared unconstitutional by the Supreme Court of the United States today.

CURLEY SENDS RESIGNATION TO CONGRESS

ness men of the Twelfth District $10,000.

"In resigning I feel that it is something that I owe myself. I was living made a scapegoat by somebody either locally or elsewhere, and this plan of certain political parties in Washington was being used as a means of disposing of Congressman Hobson.

"There are several instances where mayors have held their seats in Congress. Two of them in particular were Thomas Riley as Mayor of Meriden, Ct., and there was Mayor Mahan of New London. Both were members of the Sixty-second Congress and retained their seats.

"It will take thirty days at least before a special election can be arranged. After the nomination then the election. This will bring it well up to June. Congress will then adjourn and the newly elected member of congress would have to wait until December.

"He would then serve a short term as my term would expire on March 4 next year."

LETTER IS MAILED.

Mayor Curley's resignation was mailed to Washington and to the Governor this afternoon.

It was believed in Washington that as a result of the resignation the Mann resolution would be pigeonholed and lost forever.

Mayor Curley has not been in Washington since January 18, yet he is credited in the Congressional Record with the introduction of three memorials, two on January 29 and one on February 3. These are the only official actions of Representative-Mayor Curley during his term at this session. These actions, moreover, were not the result of Curley's own efforts, in as much as he was out of town at the time.

When a member of Congress is out of town it is customary for pressing matters to be presented by a friendly colleague, but in such cases the record is kept straight by a statement to the effect that Mr. So and So introduced such and such a bill "In behalf of" the absent gentleman. Apparently Curley did not care to risk the appearance of absence in the Record.

HAVE DARK HAIR AND LOOK YOUNG

Nobody can Tell when you Darken Gray, Faded Hair with Sage Tea.

Grandmother kept her hair beautifully darkened, glossy and abundant by using a brew of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Whenever her hair fell out or looked dull, faded or streaked appearance this simple mixture was applied with wonderful effect. By asking at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy," you will get a large bottle of this old-time recipe, ready to use, for about 50 cents. This simple mixture can be depended upon to restore color and beauty to the hair and is splendid for dandruff, dry, itchy scalp, and for falling hair.

A well-known downtown druggist says everybody uses Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur, because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied—it's so easy to use, too. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush and draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two it is restored to its natural color and looks glossy, soft and abundant.

$130,000 FIRE ON PORTLAND'S WATER FRONT

PORTLAND, Me., Feb. 24.—Property valued at $120,000 was destroyed and three firemen had narrow escapes from death when fire today destroyed two of the large warehouses on Commercial street owned by the A. T. Galt heirs.

As a result of being overcome by smoke Lieutenant Frank Sweeney of Engine 2 is on the dangerous list. When found in the burning building he was rushed to the central police station, where the pulmotor was used upon him.

The loss on the buildings is estimated at $50,000, and to the contents the damage will be about $100,000. The warehouses contained coffee, tea, sugar, other groceries and harvesting machines.

Fire started in the vault of warehouse No. 5 at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon, and at 5 o'clock it was thought that it was under control. At 8 o'clock fire again burst through the roof.

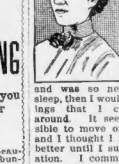
BAD OPERATION AVOIDED

By Timely Use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Mrs. Sowers' Own Statement.

Hodgdon, Maine.—"I feel it a duty I owe to all suffering women to tell what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound did for me. One year ago last April I found myself a terrible sufferer. I had pains in both sides and such a soreness I could scarcely straighten out at times.



My back ached, I had no appetite and was so nervous I could not sleep, then I would be so tired mornings that I could scarcely get around. It seemed almost impossible to move or do a bit of work and I thought I never would be any better until I submitted to an operation. I commenced using Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and soon felt like a new woman. I had no pains, slept well, had good appetite and could do almost all my own work for a family of four. I shall always feel that I owe my good health to your medicine."—Mrs. HAYWARD SOWERS, Hodgdon, Maine.

If you are ill do not drug along until an operation is necessary, but at once take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

If you have the slightest doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will help you, write to any of the women whose testimonial letters we are constantly publishing. They will tell you their experience and give you confidence to try the medicine.

Stories about Stage Folk

Briefs from "Within the Law."

THERE'S nothing you can't do with the law if you have money.

NOWADAYS we don't call it a "court of justice"; we call it a "court of law."

IT ain't what you've done, it's what they can make a jury think you've done.

THE most important work of the police department rests on the use of the stool-pigeon—a crook who betrays his pals for coin.

DO it according to legal ethics. Legal ethics! Yeh, get it legally, and get twice as much.

RUSSIA ain't in it with the things I've seen pulled off here (meaning New York).

Bright Bits from "The Beauty Shop."

Some of the snappy scraps of dialogue in the beauty parlor, heard in the Raymond Hitchcock show at the Tremont. Present, the manicure girls.

GLADYS—This business should be made to pay.

Vivian—Yes, if the customers could. If we don't get some real coin pretty soon—bankrupt! It's a case of receive or receiver.

(Enter Chairman of Creditors' Committee.)

CHAIRMAN—I want to see Dr. Budd.

Vivian—Then why come here? This is his office!

CHAIRMAN—Say, I represent a committee of creditors—

Vivian—Oh, you needn't be proud! We've got other creditors. You've been here before.

Chairman—Yes, many a time, and I told the doctor that we'd let him keep his shop open if he'd pay attention to business. Yesterday afternoon I bumped into him out turkey-trotting. What's his office hours, anyway?

Vivian—Why, he don't have office hours. He's a skin doctor.

Chairman—Oh, I know he's a skin doctor. Budd's running this business for the benefit of his creditors and if he don't run it right, he'll soon be turkey-trotting in jail.

"Cops" and Grafters.

Robert Hilliard, at the Park Theatre as "Never-Sleep-Kayton," the detective in "The Argyle Case," closely scrutinizes a $100 gold certificate. He has found it in the desk of the late John Argyle, while investigating the mystery of that eccentric gentleman's murder. The police, in an earlier search, had overlooked it. Something about the bill aroused Kayton's suspicion that it may be counterfeit.

"Joe" Manning, his young assistant, is calling up the Chief of the Secret Service in Washington. While waiting for response, he flippantly remarks to his superior:

"I say, Governor—it's funny to me one of those cops didn't pinch that hundred dollar bill."

There is some laughter out in front. It is quite the thing to slap the police from the stage nowadays. Nearly every burlesque comedian and vaudeville performer does it.

"Joe," replies the detective quietly, "a man's mouth is responsible for a good deal of damage. If he doesn't use his brain. You've got that New York habit of knocking the police force."

"What's that, Governor?" says the startled assistant.

"Suppose there are a few grafters among ten thousand policemen," continues Kayton. "Whose fault is it? Yours and mine, Joe—for putting the political grafters we do over them. And I'll tell you something else, Joe, while we're on this subject—there are a lot of tough guys here in New York, but few who want to start anything single-handed with a New York cop, and don't you forget it."

"I never looked at it like that," says Joe, thoughtfully.

"No, and a lot of other people never looked at it like that, but it goes."

Some Stars.

Adelina Genee is quoted as saying that she will retire from the stage at the age of thirty-six.

The trouble with most people of the stage, meaning no reflection on the wonderful ability of Mlle. Genee, is they put off retirement until they have worn out the public welcome.

They are like a few of our well-known prize fighters, they don't know whey they've had enough.

Randolph Hartley, the accomplished advance manager for "Kismet," has departed and left a large hole in the social and picturesque atmosphere of the town. Hartley looks like a divine; takes his Scotch "neat" and is altogether a gentleman.

Miss Nance O'Neil has requested her press agent to request the newspapers to comply with her request and give her new sketch the title "In Self Defence" instead of "The Second Ash Tray," as the act was originally advertised.

Request granted!

Chatter You Hear in Hotel Lobbies

She Should "Bibble."

A state street matron was home to dubble with the other day. Everyone we can get women to dubble, spesher like mother's favorite indoor sport.

"I think she's a fool," said the daughter to the other day. "I mean she's not a horse. She doesn't need to be made do it.

"The horse did some fine runs to last. He turned over once and the other way. I said.

"Well, you lose only one. The horse you had your money on was doing the wrong way.

"She giggled weakly and very artful glee.

"That just proves a woman's intellect can't go wrong," she announced triumphantly. "I proved him wrong wave."

Measured Wits.

Among the notables of the social and eccentric painter related to Whistler stories, by Tom Quilter, is the following concerning him and Whistler's wife and those of Mark Twain. The latter on a visit to the studio, approached a nearly completed painting and said, with an air of hopeless despair:

"I shall never, never be able to paint like that, all hail, Mr. Whistler, not at all hail. Only how is this accomplished, submitted, with a motion as if to rub out a visual error. "If I were you I'd do away with that forever."

"Mad, sir?" cried the painter. "Be careful there. Don't you see the paint is not yet dry?"

"Yes, don't mind that," said Mark, meeting. "I am wearing gloves, you see!"

That put an after that.

Sad, but Very True.

A literary lawyer went out last Sunday to dine with an old-time friend.

With the head of the house he was discussing various men and women prominent in the life of the Rialto.

"What's the life of a party?" asked the young son, who had been listening attentively.

"The life of the party, my son, is a man who buys while the other fellows are hanging back, trying to remember where turn it in."

Illiterate.

One day the late Maurice Barrymore was swinging down Fifth avenue with Sidney Rosenfeld, the playwright, rushed up to him, all excitement.

"Oh, Maurice," he wailed, "have you read of my misfortune?"

Barrymore sympathized, "Is some illness in your family?"

"No, that," said Rosenfeld, "but almost as bad. My little boy, five years old, took of my new play and tore it to pieces."

"I didn't know the child could read," said Barrymore—and continued his walk.

Approbation.

"I suppose you are a good example to your children?"

"Indeed we do. I heard my oldest daughter tell a visitor that their parents are the best tango dancers in the block."

Cannon and Reform

THE rock that for full three-score years had weathered every storm
That hurled against its beetling brow the billows of reform
Has bowed its high and haughty head. The oak that braved the blast
And roared defiance to the skies is toppled down at last.
Let heralds shout the news abroad from Maine to Mexico;
The Saginaw Y. M. C. A. has captured Uncle Joe.

At Danville or the Capitol, unmoved by storm or stress,
Impervious to all appeals or any known duress,
With lifting limpid language he made his opinions clear
And slevedores and jucknoates, though envious, cried "Hear, hear!"
Let Saginaw with laurels crown her fair and leauteous brow
For she alone could make of him the man that he is now.

Three rousing cheers for Saginaw! And for her people's sakes
Let every one devoutly hope the reformation takes.
Let's trust that while he's in their midst that nothing will disturb
The peace that's set on Uncle Joe this lovely lingual curb.
For if by chance while in the gym he falls and stubs his toe
We hate to think what they will think of dear old Uncle Joe.

The Dear Fool

The Story of the Love of a Woman of 40 for a Boy of 22

"OH!" said Betty, meekly. "Anybody seen Bill?"

"I met him with his rod just now—I gather he's gone fishing," answered Eggy.

"I'm miserable when they're out of my sight. I've lost my nerve—somehow." Betty's voice trailed off as if she were analyzing her own strange little self.

"Ethel hasn't!" smiled Eggy cheerily. "Ethel has been making a revelation to me that adds much fuel to my shamed mental fires."

"What has Ethel been doing?" asked Betty.

"Oh, only fulfilling her destiny, I suppose," replied Eggy in a tone that might have done credit to Ethel herself.

"Do you know what he's talking about, Ethel?"

"I presume he's referring to the fact that I've decided to marry Lord Murdon."

"What?"

"I fancy you heard me."

"Marry Lord Murdon!" gasped Betty.

"Have you anything to say against my doing so?" questioned Ethel, very coldly indeed.

"No—I don't suppose I have—but—er—well—it's rather a surprise. Somehow I never pictured you married to any one!"

And that remark could not have been expected to please any woman! However, Ethel replied with her habitual outward calm—though she was feeling again that storm of emotion that had whipped a branch of beech forcibly against Lord Murdon's face a few days before.

"No—I daresay it will amuse a great many of my friends. That fact won't keep me awake o' nights. However, I've no wish to discuss my private affairs any further—save in so far as they bear on your future, Betty. And if you can spare me half an hour I should like to have a talk with you."

"Yes. I am ready now, Ethel."

"It would be better that I spoke to you alone."

"I'll go, Ethel," offered Sir Egbert.

"Please don't, Eggy. I'd sooner—somehow—you stayed. Please say all you've got to before Eggy, Ethel. He knows—all about me. He knows all the bad in me and if there's any good in me—he knows that, too. I know you feel you've got to speak to me—to do your duty and all that. Well——" Suddenly the quiet little black-clad figure burst out passionately: "Oh, get it over—for God's sake—get it over."

There was a very expressive silence. Ethel felt that the culprit Betty was scarcely in the proper mood and assumed spirit. At last Betty spoke again.

"I'm very sorry. I didn't mean that. I'm very sorry. I'm not very well—I'm very tired. Say what you want to say, Ethel; I'll try to listen."

EGGY'S heart fairly ached with sympathy and understanding for the little woman who was paying—as woman must—so heavily. Nature imposed her burdens; Betty's outraged motherhood had taken its toll. But there are cold, grim spinster hearts that exact a Shylock penalty from every sister whose warmer blood has flowed too fast through a heart that may be sweet on the shoals of life and love.

The Woman Thou Gavest Me

HALL CAINE'S GREATEST STORY

THE NARRATIVE OF MARY O'NEILL
FOURTH PART
I FALL IN LOVE

Copyright, 1912, by Hearst's Magazine. Copyright, 1912, by Hearst's Magazine. Copyright in Great Britain. Copyright, 1913, by J. B. Lippincott Company.

I went to the window to watch her as she walked down the drive. She was wiping her eyes, but her head was up and I thought her step was light, and I was sure her face was shining.

God bless her! The dear sweet woman! Such women are she is, and my mother was—so humble and loving, so guileless and pure, never saying an unkind word or thinking an unkind thought—are the flowers of the world that make the earth smell sweet.

When she was gone and I remembered the promise I had made to her I asked myself what was to become of me. If I could neither divorce my husband under any circumstances without breaking a sacrament of the Church, nor love Martin and be loved by him without breaking the heart of his mother, where was I?

I intended to go home the following morning; I was to meet Martin the following night. What was I to say? What was I to do?

All day long these questions haunted me and I could find no answers, but toward evening I took my troubles where I had often taken them—to Father Dan.

Sixty-Second Chapter

THE door of the Presbytery was opened by Father Dan's Irish housekeeper, a good old soul whose attitude to her master was that of a "mothered" mother to a wilful child.

All the way up the narrow staircase to his room, she grumbled about his reverence. Unless he was sickening for the scarlet fever she didn't know in her seven sinses what was a-matter with him these days. He was as white as a ghost, and as thin as a shadder, and no wonder neither, for he didn't eat enough to keep body and soul together.

Yesterday itself she had cooked him a chicken as good as I could get at the Big House; "done to a turn, too, with a nice bit of Irish bacon on top, and a bowl of gratiss bilod in their jackets and a hasin of beautiful new butther milk"; but no, never a taste nor a sup did he take of it.

"It's just timpting Providence his reverence is, and it'll be glory to God if you'll tell him so."

"What's that you're saying about his reverence, Mrs. Cassidy?" cried Father Dan from the upper landing.

"I'm saying you're destroying yourself with your fasting and praying and your midnight calls at mountain cabins, and never a ha'porth of anything in your stomach to do it on."

"Whist then, Mrs. Cassidy, it's daytime, isn't it? So just step back to your kitchen and put on your kettle and bring up two of your best china cups and saucers, and a nice piece of buttered toast, not forgetting a thimbleful of something neat, and then it's the onlyship proof woman you'll be entirely to be waiting for once on the first lady in the island."

"Come in, my daughter, come in."

He was laughing as he let loose his Irish tongue, but I could see that his housekeeper had not been wrong and that he looked worn and troubled.

As soon as he had taken me into his cosy study and put me to sit in the big chair before the peat and wood fire, I would have begun in my errand, but not a word would he hear until the tea had come up and I had taken a cup of it.

Then stirring the peats for light as well as warmth, (for the room was dark with its lining of books, and the evening was closing in) he said:

"Now what is it? Something serious—I can see that much."

"It is serious, Father Dan."

"Tell me then," he said, and as well as I could I told him my story.

ANGER IN VOICE

I told him that since I had seen him last, during that violent scene at Castle Rag, my relations with my husband had become still more painful; I told him that, seeing I could not endure any longer the degradation of my life I was living, I had thought about divorce; I told him that I had been to the Bishop and afterwards to my father's solicitor; I had learned that neither the Church nor the law, for their different reasons, could grant me the relief I required; and finally, in a faint voice almost afraid to hear myself speak it, I told him my solemn and sacred secret—that whatever happened I could not continue to live where I was now living because I loved somebody else than my husband.

While I was speaking Father Dan was shuffling his feet and plucking at his shabby cassock and as soon as I had finished he flashed out on me with an anger I had never seen in his face or heard in his voice before.

"I know who it is," he said. "It's Martin Conrad."

I was so startled by this that I was beginning to ask how he knew when he cried:

"Never mind how I know. Perhaps you think an old priest has no eyes for anything but his breviary, shi-a young Martin, isn't it?"

"Yes."

"The wretch, the rascal, the scoundrel! If he ever dares to come to this house again, I'll slam the door in his face."

I knew he loved Martin almost as much as I did, so I paid no heed to the names he was calling him but I tried to say that I alone had been to blame, and that Martin had done nothing.

"Don't tell me he has done nothing," cried Father Dan. "I know what he has done. He has told you he loves you, hasn't he?"

"Yes."

"He has been colloguing with you then, and getting you to say things?"

"Never."

"Lying and sympathising with you, anyway, in your relations with your husband?"

"Not for one moment."

"He had better not! Big man as he is, and strong as he is, I'll warn his jacket for him if he comes here making insedeled with a child of mine. But in the Lord and the holy saints he's a going away soon, so you'll see no more of him."

"But he is coming to Castle Rag," I said, "and I am to see him tomorrow night."

"That too! The young scoundrel!" I explained that my husband had invited him, being compelled to do so by the other woman.

"Worse and worse!" cried Father Dan. "Don't you see that they're laying a trap for you, and that two young fools you're walking directly into it. But no matter! You mustn't go."

I told him that I should be compelled to do so, for Martin was coming on my account only, and I could neither tell him the truth nor make an excuse that would not be a falsehood.

"Well, well, perhaps you're right there. It's not the best way to meet temptation to be always running away from it. That's Irish, but it's true enough, though. You must conquer this temptation, my child; you must fight it and overcome it."

"But I've tried and tried and I cannot," I said.

CHAPTER I.

LITTLE JACK knew that there was a place in the house where he must not go. He had vague memory of a time when he was five years old and had wakened in the night, afraid, and had crept down the creaking stairs to a door from which came the only sounds of life in "Tom Brooks' Place." Tom Brooks was his father.

He had opened the door quite confidently and had walked in—a little cherub in a white nightgown, he had seen a room full of men—a room fogged with smoke and crocked with the heat of the coal stove in the middle.

The torn, bleary men eyes of the small one glared unceasingly into the bewildered eyes of little Jack. But when the broad-shouldered, roaring "Gordy" Kemp (who had been winning) spied him and caught him in his arms, there was no more fear—at least, not until his father, "Big Tom," came swiftly from the bar in the back of the room, pushing the busy tables, where men swore and chips trailed.

Little Jack could know that trouble was brooding then. He had never seen before the look in his father's eyes as he roughly snatched it from the arms of "Gordy." There was pain and prescience in the look, but Jack was just a baby then and saw only the tenderness and tears in it. His father had hastily bade him and told him stories of the "Injun days" until he fell asleep.

When he was asleep his father went downstairs, and two puffs of white smoke, with gold trimmings of flame, cut into the grey tobacco mist, and they took drunken, good-natured "Gordy" to the doctor at Paride City with a bullet through his tableland, as they called it in the placer country.

Jack was only five then. Now he was ten. And the ramshackle barroom that had dropped like a dog the gruntled donkey's ear against the old painted building in town, the railroad station, had taken a new dress of red and green and had straightened its tottering shoulders. The irrigation had "opened up" the country, and "Big Tom" Brooks was getting rich.

Still there was one place in the house where little Jack knew he must not go.

The richer "Big Tom" got the less happy he became. Something secret and sweet and holy out of the far past—when a tender, tearful woman had "wagoned" with him from Rocks City to Rainbow Landing place" in the bleak West—had been beautifully, cruelly reborn.

Little Jack forgot that night back to him the past—the woman who had been his wife—the man that he might have been.

He decided to part with the boy.

CHAPTER II.

Little Jack went to school in Chicago. His father came to see him with a frequency that amazed the instructors and an irregularity that bewildered them. Out at "Tom Brooks' place," in Red Eagle, the habitues had grown used to seeing him turn suddenly to Jake, his grim, trusty aide, and say: "Tend to things," and take "the train out for Chicago.

Little Jack never come home.

"The place where big men go is the East," his father told him. "What do you want to do, boy?"

"I want to go to West Point —I want to get in the army," said Jack.

The magic that got him his chance was never explained to him. He simply passed exa...minations and went.

When his father accompanied him on the train, it was the final parting with the West. "Big Tom" had decided that anyone could make a fortune with the cards and the liquor in a mining camp—to make a bigger fortune in New York.

Besides, Red Eagle was becoming a city. "Big Tom" was becoming a big man—too big a man. He was ashamed of his trade of professional gambler—ashamed for the boy's sake, for the sake of the mother of the boy who had died while Tom in the early bottle with the wilderness.

He left Jack bluntly, as he was wont to do. He came to New York.

There was a relic mansion between Broadway and Fifth avenues on Forty-first street then. It has been torn down to give way to a theatre or a cafe or the like, something. But before the century was in its teens the place held a zoodid name. "Big Tom" Brooks gave it that fame.

In its gilded rooms, ludicrous and costly, you could see what good there's appetite was in you. The roulette wheel whirred pechenively a few feet from the long dining table, the poker room was quiet and silent save for the droning voice of "Hiffy" the dealer. "Pair—of—queens. Two—ladies. The gentleman has two ladies and bets seventee-five dollars. He is—CALLED."

The man who had "called" was a good-looking, smartly dressed chap of about twenty-five, who loosed at his cards carefully—almost as other men's cards and could not see them.

"Lemme have five non-red, Tom," he said, when the hand had been played and he had lost.

"Certainly."

The debt reached $2,000, and "Big Tom" paused.

"This is the last $500, you know, my boy," he said in quiet warning.

CHAPTER III.

Jack had been telling the young idea of adventure in the mountains of Samar. He had seen fighting—not the kind he had expected, but the fighting of the fanatic "head-hunters," who shave off their hair and frighten, take a knife in each hand and rip into anything in sight, not fearful of death, but determined to die.

"Splendid!" he lisped politely to saintly little Jane Van Buren on the steamer. "It is only splendid when you get on board a good ship bound for home. I thought I had the love for fighting—but—I didn't."

"Fighting for love perhaps suits your frail courage," she parried. She also blushed too quickly. She hadn't meant to say it at all. It was outrageous of him to take her in his arms there on the far aft deck. He should have respected her embarrassment. He should have known she didn't mean it. But he seemed to have nothing except that he held her in his arms.

CHAPTER IV.

"Dad!"

"My boy!"

"Big Tom's" iron right hand grip was softened by the almost mother-like gentleness of his other hand on the shoulders of the man-grown son.

They sat down and chummed together as of old. It was only the scene that was different. The trickery walls of the "place" in Red Eagle were supplanted by all the quality—if a bit untasteful—adornments of a New York hotel suite.

The telephone rang.

"It's a call for Mr. Brooks—Lieutenant Brooks"—said the servant.

"I'm going out, my boy. Back soon. Do as you please," said "Big Tom" as he left the room.

"That you, Jack?" came over the phone.

"Yes."

"This is Ed—say"——

"Ed! Why, you old bandit! Why haven't you been around? When I was at the house yesterday Jane told me you were in town."

"Glad to hear your voice, old man—but I can't go to Brooklyn to-night. Down in Forty-first street. Say—I've lost everything I ever looked at through a magnifying glass. I've borrowed all I can. Come down and help me, will you, Jack?"

"Sure you can, you mean. Well, anyway, I'll be there in a minute."

CHAPTER

"Not a cent more, my boy," "Big Tom" was saying to Eddy Van Buren. "You never heard of Red Eagle, Nev., or the town where the drops of melt...

A SCENE FROM "THE WINNING HAND."

...keep in from the mountains and the dust of women blows in from the desert. They play poker out there; they play poker out there right. The man who wins puts his money in his pocket and gets home with it if he is lucky. The man who loses bows to the winning hand.

"That's the right way. Here you bet as soon as you lose. Here you've given me all father's checks for $1,000. You could have done a lot with that check. Don't ask me for any more, my boy. Don't."

"Jack!"

Eddy had turned to the opening door of the inner room of Tom Brooks' gambling house.

Jack was coming in. He stopped suddenly.

"Dad! What are you doing here?" he gasped out.

The elder man was silent, stunned.

"I—I sometimes gamble—just a little. It's an old habit," he stammered.

"Jack, can you help me out?—I'm flat. I'm gone—I can't get another cent from this swindling gambler."

"This WHAT? You cur. You liar. Go. Get out. You are talking to my father."

"A gambler cheat," snarled young Van Buren.

"Who just took a forged check for $1,000 that you signed with your father's name," said "Big Tom" Brooks. But he was not angry—not even confident—he was sinking into his chair like a rag. "You could have had $50,000—anything—all I've got. You've taken all I've got; you've told my boy what I am."

"Dad!"

"I tried to hide it. I couldn't. The right thing always holds the winning hand."

"I'd like to hold your hand, Dad."

"There's a girl's hand, boy, that I've lost for you."

"You couldn't, Dad. She knew; and—and we're married."

CLOGGED NOSTRILS OPEN AT ONCE, HEAD COLDS AND CATARRH VANISH

In One Minute Your Stuffy Nose and Head Clears, Sneezing and Nose Running Cease, Dull Headache Goes.

Try "Ely's Cream Balm."

Get a small bottle anyway. Just to try it. Apply a little in the nostrils and instantly the clogged nose and stopped-up air passages of the head will open, you will breathe freely, dullness and headache disappear, and not another sneeze, catarrh, cold in head or catarrhal sore throat will be gone.

Real, quick misery now! Get the small bottle of "Ely's Cream Balm" at any drug store. Beware of Boils—THEIR Very Appearance Denotes a Blood Condition That Requires Prompt Action

At the first appearance of pimples and boils the blood should be given a good, searching, internal bath with S. S. S., the greatest blood purifier known to man.

This remarkable remedy has the peculiar action of soaking through the intestines directly into the blood. In a few minutes its influence is at work in every artery, vein and tiny capillary. Every membrane, every organ of the body, every muscle, every tissue, in effect, a filter to strain the blood of impurities. The cleansing properties of S. S. S. compel the skin, liver, bowels, kidneys, bladder to all work to the one end of casting out every irritating, every pain-forming atom of poison; it dislodges by irrigation all accumulations in the joints causes and secretions to dissolve, renders them neutral and scatters those peculiar matters in the skin that cause boils and other skin eruptions.

And, best of all, the remarkable remedy is gentle to the weakest stomach. In a very brief time S. S. S. has the resources of nature so under control that remarkable changes are effected. All eruptive places heal, the serious pains and aches have disappeared, and from that day there is a conscious sensation of renewed health. That strange, moody, morbid feeling of depression is lifted and the nervous system responds with surprising energy.

You can get S. S. S. at any drug store. Beware of any effort to sell you something claimed to be "just as good." If none in your familiar case and you desire expert advice, write to the Swift Specific Co., 306 Swift Bldg., Atlanta, Ga.

Used Tobacco Over 46 Years! HAS NOW QUIT FOREVER

All Desire Gone and He Doesn't Even Think of It Now

The photo "a that of Mr. J. A. Hill, a highly respected citizen of St. Lawrence County, N. Y. After many years of tobacco using (mostly chewing) and after having spent fifty dollars for so-called "cures," he got a certain book which gave him valuable information about how to get rid of the habit, quickly and easily. He followed the information and now all desire is gone.

GAINED 56 POUNDS!

One of the other, established growers of Seattle, Mr. H. Sherman, says he had a smoking record of 20 cigars, daily average! That he was in bad condition is hardly necessary to explain. He got the free book, followed the information; now he is done with the tobacco habit, has gained 56 pounds in weight; health improved accordingly.

SNUFF HABIT CONQUERED.

Mrs. E. Barnes, an estimable lady of May's Landing, was able to rid herself of all desire for snuff and now she feels very much better. Many others have done likewise through the information obtained from the free book.

WILL SEND BOOK FREE.

The above are but three out of dozens of cases that might be cited. If you are addicted to the use of tobacco in any form—pipe, chewing, snuff, cigars or cigarettes—don't wait another day but write to the author, Edward J. Woods, 354 Sixth Ave., 354 T, New York City, and he will mail the book free, in plain wrapper; it will likely be worth its weight in gold to you.

Mayor Healed; D.D.D. Clears Skin

Soothing Wash Heals—Then D.D.D. Skin Soap Keeps the Skin Healthy

Mayor Chapman of Ellis, Kansas, courteously says he will answer any letters written him relative to his truly marvelous cure of skin troubles with the D. D. D. Prescription.

Mayor Chapman writes: "I think how I suffered last Winter, how I could do no work. I was covered with terrible blotches—sometimes weeping water, sometimes worse blotches sometimes 16 inches in diameter. FEARFUL ITCHING. I was only accidentally that I learned of the famous specific—D. D. D. write this in all gratitude for what D. D. D. has done for me."

Results from the use of D. D. D. are immediate. The first soft, cool touch and the itch is gone!

GRACE GEORGE WINS IN PLAY AT THE SHUBERT

By NICHOLAS YOUNG.

There may be more impressive things in the world than a good family row, but when skilfully conducted through the medium of the drama they sometimes suffice as entertainment. And, unless you are careful, you are liable to concede to the family row in "Jim's Marriage" a naturalness that might implicate a too intimate knowledge of the subject. Grace George shone upon us at the Shubert yesterday in a new play that dramatized family discord, and made you feel grieved that a lady so wholesome and genuinely human should be set adrift in such surroundings.

"Jim's Marriage" carried you into the inner circle of a strange and proud family that was almost as cheerful as the measles. There was everything in the Ellerby home but happiness, and when the playwrights (Forest Halsey and Olive Porter) attempted to brighten the atmosphere with a sweet young woman of agreeable nature they put a lot of real hard work in their play for Miss George. But she took the reins in both hands and made the best of it. The play started like a comedy—if you could believe all that was said in the first act. Here, in the family circle, you heard real truths about every member in the Ellerby household. Not even the dear, white-haired mother was spared.

MISS GEORGE WINS.

Miss George arrived as the wife of the elder son—the son being induced to marry her because she was the daughter of a financial monarch who manufactured lard and had signs on all the fences. It was the name on the fences, not the money the young woman possessed, that raised the barrier. Of course, Bushrod Ellerby really loved his lard girl, but he was hastened into an early marriage because of the pressing need of substantial backing to keep his wayward brother from going to jail. As the son-in-law to the lard king credit was easy and the dissolute brother was saved from disgrace.

Naturally the whole rotten business came out in the end—as you know it would, and Jemima, who was played with a gracious touch by Miss George, believed the worst and would not listen to reason. Not a dollar of her money had been touched, but the taint was there just the same.

Miss George gave Jemima womanly qualities that won your sympathy from the start, but she was a little severe on poor Bushrod when she told him flatly that he had deceived her and that everything was ended. She couldn't be made to feel that Bushrod was pushed to the limit to save the honor of the family. As a matter of fact the family was not worth the sacrifice.

Of course, a woman may change her mind, but none of us ever knew one to change so quickly as Jemima did when she finally fell back into the strong arms of her husband and forgave him. Even the holiday audience, which was trained to expect unusual things, was caught off its guard at this sudden shift of feminine policy.

SHOWS DELICATE SKILL.

Miss George made a particularly attractive Jemima. She had youth and freshness, good humor and good sense, and spread a delicious charm over the affairs of a lot of people who did not deserve so much. Howland Estabrook was an indecisive Bushrod. He was probably borne down under the weight of the name. Beverly Sitgreaves gave a decidedly impressionistic study of a badly disappointed and soured female, and Josephine Lovett suffered in a pitiful way as a spinster who longed for a romance. Clinton Preston, Edward Mannery, Rex McDougal, Maud Hosford and Jean Shelby carried the remaining burdens.

"Jim's Marriage" gave Miss George agreeable work, and she directed it with the same delicate skill that has given her distinction in her art.

Gaiety Theatre.

A week of rare fun for the patrons of the Gaiety Theatre was begun yesterday when Gus Fay and his "Gaiety Girls" dropped in for a week's stay at Boston brightest home of burlesque. There was more than the usual amount of entertainment in this show, for the program was crowded with cheerful specialties. Mr. Fay, who is always funny, was assisted by Nellie Florede, a girl with a big sense of humor and a large assortment of good looks. There was also a "Ladies Brass Band" to help out in the festivities. If you like burlesque that is ripe and juicy the "Gaiety Girls" will supply your wants.

Scollay Square Theatre.

Musical comedy in tabloid form furnished the principal feature of the new program at the Scollay Square Theatre yesterday. It was "A Night in the Park." Another lively contribution to the fun of the show was made by Lew Welch and his company, who were seen in "Levinsky's Old Shoes." Other vaudeville features and new motion pictures completed one of the brightest bills of the season.

'Madame Sherry' Is Given at National

The Morton Opera Company began its third week at the National Theatre yesterday. It presented "Madame Sherry" and the production was a sparkling success.

"Madame Sherry" is a bright, interesting comedy. A gay young bachelor is living on money sent to him by his uncle, who believes his nephew is married and the father of two children.

The uncle finally decides to visit his nephew and when the latter is informed of this he secures his housekeeper and two young people to play the part of mother and children.

The uncle then arrives on the scene. Everything would have gone all right if the two children had not fallen in love with each other while the jolly bachelor fell in love with his uncle's ward. There was an interesting mix-up, but everything was ultimately straightened out.

Georgia Camp played the part of the ward, while the other roles were acted by Walter Mills, Arthur Conrad, Ama Blonde, Maude Drury, Hudson Freebaine and May Emory.

Orpheum Theatre.

Billy Hall and company, in a smart farce called "Made Good," was the principal feature of the new bill at the Orpheum yesterday. There were other casts, including new motion pictures.

Howard Athenaeum.

"The Jolly Girls" supplied the new burlesque entertainment at the Old Howard yesterday. It was all that the title of the show implied. Fatima, a dancer from Turkey, was seen in a program of sensation dances.

Bowdoin Square Theatre.

"The Exposure of the White Slave Traffic," a five-reel picture, was the head-line feature of the new bill at the Bowdoin Square Theatre yesterday.

Grand Opera House.

"The Follies of Pleasure" company brought some lively burlesque to the Grand Opera House yesterday. It was a spirited show with the usual number of sprightly girls.

St. James Theatre.

The head-line attraction in the new bill at the St. James Theatre yesterday was the Frank Stafford company in "A Hunter's Game." This was but one of a dozen live features.

Waldron's Casino.

"Girls of the Gay White Way" made things merry at Waldron's Casino Theatre yesterday. It was burlesque at its best, with smart comedians and pretty girl.

Plays That Remain.

"Under Cover" continues at the Plymouth Theatre. It is high class melodrama, brilliantly acted and elaborately staged.

"Within the Law" began its second week at the Majestic yesterday. It is a play of thrills that should not be missed.

"The New Henrietta," with W. H. Crane and Douglas Fairbanks, is on its final week at the Hollis. There never was a more delicious comedy.

Joseph Santley, in "When Dreams Come True," began the final week of his engagement at the Cort yesterday. It is cheerful entertainment.

Raymond Hitchcock, in "The Beauty Shop," continues at the Tremont, where laughter and music are rolled into one merry entertainment.

"The Doll Girl," with Richard Carle and Hattie Williams, will remain at the Colonial for the balance of the week.

Robert Hilliard, in "The Argyle Case," is putting the finishing touches on his engagement at the Park. The play remains only this week.

"Way Down East," with its sensational snowstorm and delightful rural types, continues in popularity at the Boston.

The motion pictures of Captain Scott's dash to the South Pole are drawing large crowds to Tremont Temple.

This is the final week of "Traffic in Souls" at the Globe Theatre. It is white slavery exposed by motion pictures.

"Shackled Souls," a white slave photo-play, is now being exhibited for the last times at the Pastime Theatre.

Woman Captures Burglar in Fight

NEW YORK, Feb. 24.—After a desperate struggle with an armed burglar who tried to kill her husband, Mrs. Frank B. Daly of No. 2742 Eighth avenue disarmed the intruder early today and then turned him over to the police. The prisoner, John McAdams, told the police he had not reckoned on violent opposition from the woman, believing she would be too terrified to move when he attacked Daly.

Ed Vinton and his dog "Buster," with the help of a little "liverwurst," kept the audience in stitches. Dale and Boyle showed the audience that they could sing and dance.

Jed and Ethel Dooley presented a little of everything and displayed a lot of excellent talent. Pollard, the English juggler went well. The Pathe Weekly displayed many interesting news items. The Weiss troupe showed some clever pole balancing.

New Farce Is Big Hit at Castle Square

The Castle Square Theatre is putting on a farce this week without a title and it is a scream. There is something happening to make one laugh from the rise to the fall of the curtain. The person who sends in the best title for this new farce will be awarded $100.

It was written by Noel Campbell Springer and is being staged under the direction of Mr. Springer and John Craig. The police and newspapers are led to believe that a well known business man has lain his wife, who in fact the have been away on a business trip. Not until nearly time for the curtain to fall on the final act is the mystery solved.

Howard Hentley is the supposed slayer. Mr. Carleton appears as Mr. Hentley and he was at his best. Miss Doris Olsson did nicely in the character of Mrs. Hentley. Donald Meek has a part just suited to him as Walter McLane, Hentley's chum. Walter Walker appears as James J. Barres, a detective.

All the trouble is started by Mrs. Hope Barrellton Howe, an inquisitive neighbor, which character is interpreted by Miss Augusta Gill. Miss Mabel Colcord is Jane, Hentley's servant, and other members of the Castle Square Company gave good support.

Great Trio Heard in "Monna Vanna"

By FREDERICK JOHNS.

"Monna Vanna" returned to the Opera House, last night, after visits to the Chicago, Metropolitan and Philadelphia operas. The same extraordinary trio, Garden, Marcoux and Muratore, who figured in the premiere here two months ago, were to be heard last night.

Miss Garden's illness which caused to be postponed a performance of Massenet's "Manon" last Saturday afternoon, an opera by the way worth about eight "Monna Vannas," had passed away and she was in good voice and spirits. We may quarrel with Miss Garden, and in fact she has been banged around the the circuit for her peculiarly interpretation of the saintly Vanna. Miss Garden's Vanna is not shocked at the idea of visiting Prinzivalle in his tent at midnight, clad only in a mantle. She is almost eager. Just the same, whatever she does is extremely interesting because of her personality. Personality is strongly marked also in Marcoux. It makes him a great singing actor, and Muratore is certainly the most distinguished appearing tenor whom we have seen for a long time.

The settings of Urban, which went over the circuit with the three stars drew more applause than the music of Fevrier, and rightly so. Fevrier's contains little that is inspired.

Hair Grew 4 Inches in a Few Weeks

A St. Louis Lady Increased the Length of Her Hair Four or Five Inches in a Few Weeks with This Simple Home Recipe.

A well-known St. Louis lady after using a simple recipe on her hair which she mixed at home made the following statement: "Without exaggeration my hair has grown four or five inches. The recipe she used is as follows: and any lady or gentleman can mix it at home. To a half-pint of water add 1 oz. of bay rum, a small box of Barbo Compound and ¼ oz. of glycerine. Apply to the scalp two or three times a week with the tips of the fingers. It not only promotes the growth of the hair, but [illegible] It darkens streaked, faded, gray [illegible] These ingredients can be obtained from any drug store at very little cost and mixed at home.

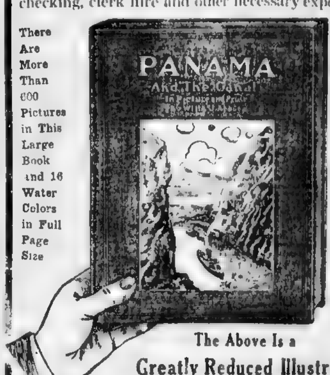
There Are More Than 600 Pictures in This Large Book and 16 Water Colors in Full Page Size



Full of Interest

Willis J. Abbot, the author of this book, "writes for the people." He went into the Canal Zone to learn all about it and did not return until his task was fully completed. From the time when Columbus searched for a natural waterway to the Pacific Ocean, he brings his readers up through the centuries of revolution and warfare, and on through to the realization of the greatest achievement of this day and age. It is a most inspiring story, filled to the full with local color and human interest—a story that will live as long as the great Canal itself.

The Above Is a Greatly Reduced Illustration of the Big Volume

The exact size is 9x12, more than double the usual size of a novel. It contains almost 500 large pages, printed from new, clear type on special highly finished paper, bound in tropical red vellum cloth, stamped in gold and inlaid with stippled color panel showing the famous Culebra Cut.

EDUCATIONAL AS WELL AS ENTERTAINING

The great knowledge to be gained by reading this volume will forever after be a valuable asset to every man, woman and child, for this great waterway is destined to become a mighty factor in times of peace and war. It will revolutionize shipping throughout the entire world; it will bring about changes in the trade and commerce of all the earth; it will open new avenues of business and establish new relationships between the various countries of the globe.

WOULD MAKE EVERS BOSS OF CUBS AGAIN

CHICAGO, Feb. 24.—"If we get control of the Chicago Cubs, it is our intention to bring back Johnny Evers as player-manager and elect a local man president," said Louis Behan, one of the bidders for the Murphy interest in the Cubs today.

CHICAGO, Feb. 24.—It now seems certain that Charles P. Taft, who purchased the controlling interest in the local National League team from Charles W. Murphy last Saturday, will not remain in control of the Cubs very long.

WALTER CAMP'S COLUMN

Lord Northcliffe to Send Other British Professionals to United States in an Attempt to Take Open Golf Title.

By WALTER CAMP.

Lord Northcliffe, who financed Ray and Vardon in their trip to the United States last September, has stated that he has firmly made up his mind to send other British golfers next year, and he threatens to send two of their very best professionals next Summer in an attempt to take the open championship of the United States.

It is possible that Ray and Vardon have had enough; at least Lord Northcliffe may not pick them again. But let no one dream for a moment that if Lord Northcliffe has really made up his mind to "go after" this event that he will not find men quite as dangerous to our golfers as the two who came last Fall. In fact, there are several men quite as likely to maintain the pace on a trip of such amateurs as these two. Meantime, Ouimet will make a journey to the other side, and so it is stated will Jerome Travers. Both Ray and Vardon believe that "Chick" Evans is the most dangerous man of our amateurs, and that McDermott is the best of our professionals. The latter, owing to an unfortunate remark that was taken up and unduly magnified, acquired undesired notoriety at the very start of the visit of the Englishmen. The remark was not intended to be offensive, although it stated his confidence in American golfers, but it was made so much of that "Johnny" was completely unnerved by the publicity and not only failed thereafter to play his customary game, but broke down at the latter part of the season with nervous prostration, from which, when I saw him a few weeks ago, he was only just recovering.

And while on the subject of golf, it is well to look at its merit for the thousands who are now thronging the Winter courses from Pinehurst down to Miami.

GOLF IS A HEALTH BUILDER.

For example, Alonzo Stagg, the former Yale football end and star pitcher, now in charge of the athletic department of the University of Chicago, has in the last few years taken up golf.

He was led to it by ill health, due to overwork, and has made a study of it, with the result that in the December tournament at Pinehurst, he not only qualified in the first division, but just missed the gross qualifying score by two strokes.

Those who have seen "Lonnie" at Pinehurst in the last two years are rejoiced to find that instead of the really serious condition to which a few years ago his breakdown had reduced him, he is quite himself again, and he attributed it almost entirely to his golf.

TRAVERS CONSIDERED DANGEROUS PLAYER.

Harold H. Hilton, the British amateur golf champion, who had the opportunity of sizing up our players on this side while he was engaged in annexing the American amateur title, evidently does not agree with Ray and Vardon in their estimate of the players on this side, or perhaps he intends to limit his criticism to only the four who are likely to appear in the British championship this year. At any rate, he regards Jerome Travers as the most to be feared of the Americans. This comparison is made with Ouimet, Hereschaff and Schmidt, and I doubt if there would be many who would differ from it, except, possibly, in a question of how the men will stand the trip. Hilton (and we must be fair in conceding him the point) claims that Ouimet had a very great advantage on the Brookline course when he defeated Vardon and Ray on account of his long familiarity with the course. There is no golfer but that realizes this, but for all time Hilton should give the boy his due.

As supplemental to each other, the four representatives certainly combine all styles of the game. Brilliant, steady, putting, driving, each man has an individual characteristic of his own, and if "Chick" Evans were to be with them it would conclude a very strong aggregation.

Schmidt is slow, deliberate, very painstaking and almost mechanical. Hereschaff rises to extraordinary heights of brilliancy. Travers, besides a remarkable all-round game, as really a marvellous putter, while Ouimet, perhaps, does the best approaching work of all of them.

Maine Schoolboy Has Rifle Record

WASHINGTON, Feb. 24—A schoolboy record was established in the sixth week's matches of the High School Rifle Shooting League when Wendel Smith, a member of the Deering High School made the possible score of 200.

First place honors are being hotly contested, a tie existing in every division. The Deering, Me., and the Iowa City teams are tied for first place in Class A, having won all six matches, while in Class B, Jamaica, L. I., Erasmus Hall of Brooklyn, N. Y. and Stoneham, Mass. are on even terms, and in Class C, Cedar Rapids, Ia., and Placer County of Auburn, Cal., share honors.

Falkenberg Gets Big Offer to Jump Feds

CLEVELAND, Feb. 24. — Owner Somers of the Naps is ready to pay Cy Falkenberg $18,000 a year salary for three years and will make a proposition to pay all expenses of a legal fight if the tall pitcher will jump from the Federals back to the Naps. No reply has been received yet from Falkenberg.

Sutton Takes Lead in Match with Hoppe

CHICAGO, Feb. 24—George Sutton won the first installment of 600 points in the 1,500-point championship match game at 18.2 balk line billiards with Willie Hoppe.

Hoppe made 459 to Sutton's 500. For the first few innings it looked as if Hoppe would make a runaway game, as runs of 41, 130, 27 and 113 gave him a total in the seventh inning of 331, against Sutton's 135.

The high runs were Sutton 185, Hoppe 130. Sutton's average was 21 10-14, at Hoppe's average was 32 11-14.

The score:

Sutton—27, 8, 52, 9, 6, 17, 58, 185, 58, 17, 1, 32, 50—total, 500; av. 21 10-14.
Hoppe—14, 4, 2, 41, 130, 27, 113, 0, 2, 25, 8, 20, 4, 49—total, 459.

Waterbury Winner in Racquet Play

Larry Waterbury of New York successfully defended his title in the final match of the national singles racquet championships play, defeating C. G. Osborne of Chicago in a hard fought match by a score of 17—14, 19—18, 18—17, 9—15, 18—11.

May Providence Intervene

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

SOME one, somewhere . . . somebody tonight . . . such a large number . . . sons losing their hearts around . . . it is little wonder that the god of love occasionally loses his . . . Overworked, flushed with success and withal a little conceited . . . of his power, he aims . . . to the right and . . . matches a Beau Brummel . . . Martha and a Becky Sharp . . . plowman.

He whirls his . . . thing around them . . . shape and one color . . . sweetheart looks . . . and the counterfeit . . . the real. It is while . . . dazed, clutching fast to whatever comes first with . . . they reach the . . . then the trouble begins.

THE CAUSE

Such trouble . . . all due to matrimony . . . wonder that there . . . hearts of those still free . . . picion of the good intentions of Dan Cupid, and a determination to . . . into their own heritage of love with eyes wide opened. It is a wonder that young men and women . . . sane and wise in ordinary . . . tions, do not display at least . . . of common sense in this . . . most important transaction of their lives.

The writer of the following letter says he has a good position . . . How he holds it with the amount of credulity he displays in his letter is a mystery. If some one came into his store and wanted to give him pennies for dimes he would feel that his intelligence had been insulted, but along comes a woman who makes a similar offer and he doesn't know what answer to give.

She is a widow with a child, he is only twenty-two, and she hinted that she would like to marry him.

"What," he pleads, "shall I do?"

Lose that "good position," and then see if she wants you to marry her. I doubt it. The women who are the . . . bargains on the matrimonial counters are not going around, with their children in their arms, hunting for mere boys to marry them.

DON'T RISK IT

A woman writes that she is a widow of twenty-five and has a son of eight, and is engaged to a man of twenty-eight who hates her child, and makes no attempt to conceal it . . . "Shall she marry him?" she asks.

Again it may be stated that the women who are the bargains on the matrimonial counter are not engaging themselves to men who hate their . . . A woman who is worth while loves her child first of all and considers its interests first. Unless she does, her love is not worth much to anyone.

A young man of twenty loves a widow eight years his senior. He has a small salary, and she is extravagant and fond of pretty clothes, and would bring in her demands on him, not only personal wants but the care and maintenance of . . . young son. What, he asks, should he do?

Run, young man, run! Your extreme youth gives you the right to run, and run hard.

"Eighteen" wants to know if she should keep company with a young man who calls on her when intoxicated. She says that she would like to accept his attention, knowing that she would never marry him.

There are others better fitted than I to give advice . . . They are the gaunt, haggard, half-starved, ill-treated wives . . . Let "Eighteen" go to them.

When marriage becomes the sane, sensible institution the Lord intended it to be, and ceases to be the national lottery, then will we . . . ready for the millennium.

Straight from Shoulder

All was bustle in the little . . . market town. On the following day the annual agricultural show was to take place, and many were the discussions it occasioned.

On one point the villagers were all agreed—that it was not right for the local doctor and solicitor to enter their donkeys in the . . . show.

"It ain't fair!" . . . suggested . . . member of the . . . committee . . . the . . . "Nat . . . doctor and lawyer . . . take the prize. They can't work like ours, and of course the . . . better . . . the show."

A murmur of assent greeted the suggestion . . . eye-waking . . . morning the . . . keys were . . . terse . . .

"All . . . excluded."

Found Them

Mrs. Dashbeau . . . (at the vicarage)—"What lovely . . . buttons you are sewing on your husband's waistcoat! Do you know, my husband once had some just like them?"

The Vicar's Wife . . . "we found them each Sunday in the collection bag."

"WILFRED has got a queer notion in his head that something terrible is going to happen to this little corner of the earth," said the Manicure Lady. "Ever since New England had that little earthquake . . . he has been mooning around the house reading all the stories that he can find in the library about great disasters, such as floods, fires, earthquakes and political exposures. LATEST STOCK MARKETS

By W. H. ROSS, Financial Editor

Stocks were dull and averaged a little lower this afternoon, the price range having failed to change much from the opening. Trading was exceedingly dull in New York declines included Denver & Rio Grande 1¾, Missouri Pacific ⅝, Reading ⅜, American Can ⅜, Amalgamated ⅛, Northern Pacific ⅝, Baltimore & Ohio ¼ and General Motors 1. New Haven was up ⅜, Union Pacific ¼ and American Ice ⅛. Canadian Pacific, Southern Pacific and Steel were unchanged.

In Boston Tamarack was up 1¾, Butte & Superior 1, Calumet & Arizona 1, while United Fruit was off 1. Boston & Maine ¾ and American Telephone ⅛. New Haven 6s declined 1 point. Elevated 4 made lower, Calumet & Arizona and North Butte were among mines to show small losses.

STOCKS OPENED LOWER.

There was a lower range to prices when the New York market opened. Traders were slow to resume business after Monday's holiday. The decline in London of American stocks had a bearish influence here. In Europe a fear of unsettled conditions in Mexico was to some extent the reason for the weakness of International issues. Dealings were small, however, and the consensus of opinion on both sides of the water was that developments south of the Rio Grande would not have much effect on the money market. The fear of the United States being forced to intervene in Mexico is no greater, no financial circle being willing to believe that the United States and Great Britain have an understanding that will preclude the necessity of an American army being sent to Mexico.

NO CHANGE IN SENTIMENT.

There was no change in sentiment and very little expectation of a revival of speculation until the industrial situation radically improves. Business may not pick up to any extent until the Interstate Commerce Commission decides the Eastern rate case. The stock market and many lines of trade are awaiting a decision on that case. There is a strong hope that an increase will be granted. If assured of more revenue roads would do more equipment buying, something which would immediately stimulate the steel manufacturing and some other industrial branches.

MARKET VERY DULL.

The market was dull and first hour transactions totalled only little more than 45,000 shares. The price range was narrow and the tone continued heavy throughout the morning, although there was a more sensitiveness to prices in the second hour.

A number of industrials were weak, declines including Railway Steel Spring, American Tobacco, Central Leather, General Electric, Westinghouse Electric, Bethlehem Steel and Mexican Petroleum. Trading did not have much scope and was even more professional than has been the rule of late. Stocks seemed to be regarded in a most apathetic manner by the public. Investment buying was at a most entirely confined to bonds. Washington news had no bearing upon specific value during the morning, and the resumption of sittings by the United States Supreme Court at noon was not a factor.

At midday and in the early afternoon there had been no improvement either in volume of business or prices. But these ruled small and had very little significance except as reflecting lethargy.

TAMARACK SOLD HIGHER.

The Boston market was very quiet at the opening. Rhode Island and New Haven sold fractionally lower and United Fruit dropped a point. New Haven regovered later. There was not much business in coppers and most of them were narrow in fluctuations, although by noon Greene-Cananea was off 1¼ and Tamarack had risen more than a point. Massachusetts Gas advanced a little. The combined net earnings of its subsidiaries in January, which are available for dividends, were $274,325, a decrease of $19,585, or 6.65 per cent., compared with an increase for January last year of $57,389, or 24.5 per cent., the largest increase for any month in the history of the company.

The Boston bank statement shows that the surplus reserve decreased $1,668,450 last week, that in New York shrinking $2,619,142.

FINANCIAL NEWS IN BRIEF.

The London copper warrants market was steady and quiet this morning, sold by boys spot and futures were each 2s 6d higher. Spot here the gain, but futures had lost the advance at the close.

Boston & Albany stockholders of February 28 record will get a dividend of $2 a share March 31.

For January Bhattuck-Arizona production was 1,276,620 pounds of copper, 24,565 ounces of silver and 204 ounces of gold.

Auto News

By J. C. KERRISON.

Washington's Birthday continues to hold a warm spot in the affection of the motorists, who for years have seen fit on that particular holiday to pay a visit to the motor dealers. The exhibit yesterday was in the nature of an early show, as the great majority of dealers held open house, and one was enabled to spend time inspecting this, that or the other machine.

On the invitation of the Edison company, the Electric Motor Club of Boston will hold an anniversary and business boosting meeting at a dinner at the American House next Tuesday evening.

The statement of Manager Danforth of the Cadillac Automobile Company of Boston that the Cadillac Company has no intention of producing a six-cylinder car should set at rest all doubts on that point.

The night-shift at the Pennsylvania Rubber Company factory in Jeannette, Pa., which was laid off early in January because the usual heavy seasonal falling off in advance sales was expected, has been put back on because demand for the "vacuum cup" automobile, motorcycle and bicycle tires has been found so consistent. The factory is running full force twenty-four hours a day.

Seneca G. Lewis, general manager, who has just made a trip through the West, says he expects the 1914 season to be the best in the history of the company.

BOOKS FOR THE WHOLE FAMILY

Wisely Laying in Another Supply to Be Used for Presentation Purposes.

"Are we allowed to get more than one of those Panama books?"

The question was cautiously asked at the distributing counter of the AMERICAN by a slender, fine-featured woman, whose veil partly concealed the anxiety which had prompted her to make this inquiry.

"Certainly; you may get as many as you wish," she was told.

"Oh, I'm so glad to know it," she replied, apparently relieved of the difficulty that was troubling her, "for this will make the fifth Panama book in our family. I got one the first week, then my husband got one, and my son and daughter each got one, as fast as they could collect the certificates from the AMERICAN; and now I'm back again, so that is why I asked the question."

"Why do you want so many?" she was asked.

"Why, we're going to send them as Christmas presents. Of course, they only cost 98 cents each with certificates, but they are worth more than $4 book I ever saw."

As the book was handed to the customer, she said with a smile, "I'll be back for more as soon as I get enough certificates, for my husband says he won't come again and get them for me."

FORBES SHOWS AMERICAN LEAD OVER BRITAIN

By B. C. FORBES, Business Editor.

To get the right view of a great building, a fine monument a masterpiece in oils or even a famous man, you must stand away a bit. You then get the right perspective.

Those who are continually complaining about the United States and its current doings would do well to act on this principle. Let them take a longer-range look. Their vision will be truer. They will find more to admire, more to become enthusiastic over, more to inspire them. They will find they are citizens of no mean state.

* * *

Amid so much whining, so much railing, so much dissatisfaction, perhaps it may not be amiss to present here some impressive facts and figures which have just been laid before our friends across the sea by the British Tariff Commission. The record should stop some of the hysterical despondency concerning this country's prospects and development.

Compared with the material progress made by the United States Britain has been dormant. "Unparalleled in the world's history," is how the British commission describes the growth in the past generation.

"In order to estimate the probable effects of the new United States tariff upon the industry of that country and upon the British Empire and the rest of the world it is necessary in the first place," says the commission, "to apply the ordinary accepted tests to the growth of the United States in the past generation. Even a cursory survey will show that in its volume and character this growth has been unparalleled in the world's history, and has taken place under the high tariff system which has been rigorously maintained during practically the whole of that period.

"The United States has in the course of one generation added to itself a population as large as the present population of Great Britain and more than four times as large as the increase which has taken place in the United Kingdom in the same period."

* * *

Our aggregate wealth rose between 1880 and 1904 by 150 per cent, or from $46,500,000,000 to $111,500,000,000.

Only 4 per cent of the United Kingdom's population is engaged in agriculture; of ours, 35 per cent. And, whereas Britain's is declining, ours is growing—in 1881 the total was 7,700,000. In 1901 it was 10,400,000, and is now estimated at 11,500,000.

The value of our agricultural property in thirty years has increased $30,000,000,000, or 240 per cent., as compared with a decrease there between 1880 and 1900 of about $5,000,000,000.

"The principal raw materials of United States industry," the commission adds, "are coal, iron and petroleum, and the increased production is a measure of the expansion of manufacturing industries. Coal and iron have increased nearly sixfold in thirty years, and the production of coal now nearly equals in force as that of the United Kingdom, and that of iron ore nearly three times as large. The coal production in the United States, which was only 1½ tons per head in 1881, is now nearly five tons per head. In addition the United States manufacturer has at his command increasing home resources of petroleum and water power incomparably greater than all the sources of power other than coal which are available in the United Kingdom. Taking all minerals together the value of the 1911 output was £600,000,000 in the United States and £440,000,000 sterling in the United Kingdom.

"The gross value of the products of all manufacturing industries in the United States has grown from £1,100,000,000 in 1879 to £2,800,000,000 in 1909. After deducting the cost of materials used in the net product is £1,600,000,000 in 1879 and nearly £1,900,000,000 in 1909. Making due allowance for difference in the method of compiling statistics in the two countries it is evident that already the manufacturing output of the United States is very much larger than that of the United Kingdom, and probably more than twice as large.

Then how do wages compare? Let the official report again speak: "The total of the industrial wage bill has grown from £198,000,000 to £714,000,000 in the thirty years; the average of £72 per head in 1879 has become the average of £108 per head in 1909. A roughly comparable British figure is £55." That is, wages there are only half what they are here.

Our growth in the iron and steel industry has dwarfed Britain's. Thus: The production of pig iron, which was only 4,100,000 tons in 1881, was 23,600,000 tons in 1911, or 2½ as much as was produced in the United Kingdom. In 1912 the United States production was 29,700,000 tons, or more than three times the United Kingdom production. The production of tinplates reached in 1911 the enormous total of 784,000 tons. This total, which is now larger than the production of the United Kingdom, is the more remarkable in that before 1892 there was no production of tinplates in the United States. The total value of the output of the blast furnaces, steel works, rolling mills, forges and bloomeries has risen from £62 to £87,000,000, the corresponding British production is approximately that represented by the output of the smelting, rolling and founding trades as shown by the census of production; this figure was about £105,000,000 for 1907."

Railway mileage here has increased from 103,000 to 255,000 in forty years, and freight from 256,000,000 tons in 1882 to 1,591,000,000 in 1911, whereas Britain's mileage went from 18,175 in 1881 to 23,440 in 1911, and freight from 256,000,000 tons to 542,000,000 tons during the same period. This comment is added: "The freight carried on the railways of the United Kingdom is now less than one-third that of the United States."

This summary of the Tariff Commission's investigations is interesting. "Except in the case of woolens and possibly one or two lesser groups, the general high level at which the duties have been retained makes it problematical whether the United States proportion of British manufactures can materially increase."

* * *

America may have her setbacks. Her politicians may overshoot the mark and injure our industries. But we are marching forward with firm tread. We are not standing still. Our progress is the envy of our rivals and the wonder of the world.

Orders for pictures or answer lists will not be filled unless accompanied by sufficient return postage.

The Contest Plan

Each day for 75 days, commencing Sunday, Jan. 4th, the Boston American will print a picture representing a number or title of a song, book, poem, explorer, play, proverb, river or lake, or other appropriate subject.

$4,000 in cash prizes will be awarded to the 155 competitors who send in the largest number of correct answers. (See Contest Rules.)

There will be no catalogue or book of titles to buy. The American will furnish this information absolutely free to contestants by publishing each week in the Sunday American an official list of names or titles, among which will be found the CORRECT answers to the pictures to be used during the week commencing with each Sunday publication.

Choose when the prize list and get busy right now—today, for the big $1,000 cash prize.

ROUND UP HOUSE MEMBERS FOR INCOME DUES

WASHINGTON, Feb. 24—There was a "bread line" of Congressmen at the office of Sergeant-at-Arms Robert Gordon, of the House of Representatives.

The Congressmen must return by Saturday their incomes. This includes not only the salary of $7,500 a year, but the clerk hire, the mileage and allowance for stationery.

It has been charged the earnings of Representatives amount in some instances to $9,000 a year. Some of the Congressmen are thrifty and do much of their private work for themselves. No instance is reported where the full allowance to a Congressman has not been drawn.

Sergeant-at-Arms Gordon, paymaster for the House, must collect the tax at the source, under penalty. If he fails both he and all offending Congressmen may be liable to disqualification for office.

First returns to be made up are for incomes from October to January. Congressmen are claiming exemption for clerk hire, stationery allowance and mileage, which puts their income tax at about $13 each.

Second returns, being prepared for the next year by Mr. Gordon, will multiply this by four. Bachelors must pay on $4,000 more than married men. There are few bachelors in the House.

Mr. Phone-Ad Says:

The Knights of Pythias are going to have a "golden jubilee" on the 24th. Advertisers who use the "Want Ad" columns of the Boston American have a jubilee all the time. They have good cause, for Boston American "Want Ads" bring results, and that's what counts when judging the value of an advertising medium. It costs so little, too. You may 'phone your ads in to Main 5180, or leave them at the Boston American, 80-82 Summer street, 294 Washington street, or at any of the American "Want Ad" stations.

No Policy of Watchful Waiting Will Meet This Diplomatic Case!

By the murder of the Englishman, W. S. Benton, at the hands of the Mexican bandit, Villa, upon whom the United States recently conferred the privilege of buying arms and munitions of war in our territory, the Wilson administration is brought face to face with a situation of the utmost gravity.

Its record thus far in handling the Mexican crisis gives little promise of any diplomatic triumph in dealing with British resentment.

The position in which the administration now finds itself is the direct and inevitable outcome of the policy of temporizing and procrastination which has characterized President Wilson's diplomacy since he took office.

It is made the more menacing by the fact that against the united advice of all military authorities at Washington and on the border, and heedless of the counsels of public men and publicists who urged a contrary course, President Wilson lifted the embargo on arms, which had been in force, and gave to Villa the opportunity, eagerly seized, to arm his bandits with modern weapons.

If, today, the murder of Benton should force upon us execution of the duty which has at all times been morally ours, of intervening in Mexico to restore order, it will have to be done against the savage opposition of Mexicans thoroughly armed through our own folly.

The record of Great Britain in protecting her subjects in every land leaves no reason to doubt that in this case immediate reparation will be demanded. The demand may be made through the United States, since by our refusal to intervene or to permit foreign intervention, we have assumed a certain responsibility for foreigners in Mexico.

In that case we can enforce our demand only by the military methods that should have been employed long ago.

Or Great Britain, wearying of our policy of watchful waiting, may proceed to make its own demand upon Huerta, as the responsible government, and back it up with her ships and guns. In that case, what becomes of the Monroe Doctrine if President Wilson tamely acquiesces, as he acquiesces in the British raid on the Panama Canal?

Three months ago in this newspaper Mr. Hearst, in a signed editorial, pointed out exactly the impossible position into which the drifting policy of the administration was leading the country. At that point we have arrived, and the comments of foreign newspapers printed in connection with Mr. Hearst's article elsewhere on this page show how accurately the present situation was foreseen, and how thoroughly its gravity was described.

Some years ago when an American, Perdicaris, residing in Morocco, was kidnaped and held for ransom, President Roosevelt notified the ruler of Morocco:

"I want Perdicaris living or Raisuli dead."

A squadron off the coast of Morocco emphasized the demand, and Perdicaris was surrendered.

That action was of inestimable value to the United States, stimulating and encouraging the national spirit at home, emphasizing and establishing national dignity abroad.

But today Americans who are kidnaped, beaten, robbed by Mexican bandits, are rebuked by the State Department for not fleeing from the country. What Europe thinks of that policy the comments of the most influential foreign newspapers printed herewith sufficiently tell.

Unquestionably this event marks the end of the Wilson policy thus far pursued. But whether for it is to be substituted a truly American policy of firmness and action, even to the point of armed intervention, or a program of even more abject evasion and surrender, is yet to be seen.

The record thus far gives little hope that the Wilson administration is capable of the sturdy Americanism that will show our ability to protect our own citizens, or those for whom we are morally responsible, in a chaotic land.

Roosevelt, with his Moroccan demand; Dewey, with his shot across the bow of Admiral Diederichs' ship; Cleveland, with his sturdy Venezuelan message; Charles Francis Adams stopping the Confederate cruisers in British shipyards; Andrew Jackson hanging British conspirators in Florida—all these and others who stood for true self-respecting Americanism are remembered in our history, and the importance of their acts taught to every child in school.

Is Wilson's name yet to be added to that list?

Foreign Press Comment on the Benton Murder Follows Mr. Hearst on the Wilson Policy

NOVEMBER 18 last the AMERICAN published a signed editorial by William Randolph Hearst dealing with the Mexican situation. The editorial was a plea for the protection of American citizens residing in Mexico, an arraignment of the Wilson administration for its policy of delay and a demand for armed intervention in Mexico for the protection of our citizens there.

In the course of his argument Mr. Hearst took occasion to condemn the project of arming the Mexican insurgents, and pointed out the results that now have happened as the outcome of that policy. This part of his editorial is reprinted on this page, together with editorials from foreign newspapers of this week reiterating the arguments he offered three months ago.

From an editorial by William Randolph Hearst in the Boston American, November 18, 1913.

"The proposal of the Administration at Washington to allow the admission of arms into Mexico for the better arming of the Constitutionalists is an astounding evidence of governmental fatuousness, feebleness and folly.

"The greater part of the bandit bands which roam Mexico, marauding and murdering, call themselves Constitutionalists or Revolutionists.

"It is they who have killed the greatest number of the citizens of the United States in Mexico and who have destroyed the greatest amount of the property of those citizens.

"To arm these bands better would merely mean offering them greater opportunity and greater inducement to murder more Americans and destroy more American property.

"Furthermore, if the United States shall be compelled to invade Mexico, the guns which would be turned against our American soldiers would be the guns which the government of the United States had put into the hands of the Mexicans.

"Finally, the proposal of the Administration at Washington to install one or another of the contending Mexican factions in control of the Mexican Government offers no prospect either of peace to Mexico or of protection to the citizens of the United States.

"Any one faction installed in power would immediately encounter the armed opposition of every other faction throughout the country, and the operations of these other factions would be levelled with peculiar vindictiveness and virulence against all citizens of the United States in Mexico because of the action of the United States Government in supporting one faction in this Mexican complication and opposing the other factions.

"The United States should intervene in Mexico, but there is only one course that it can pursue, either honorably or effectively, either with proper regard for its obligations to its own citizens or with sufficient repressive effect on the state of anarchy prevailing in Mexico.

"That course is to occupy Mexico and restore it to a state of civilization by means of American MEN and American METHODS.

"That course is for the United States itself, not some incompetent and unrepresentative Mexican faction, to re-establish peace and order and civilized procedure in Mexico for the proper protection of our own citizens and for the best benefit of all honest and worthy Mexican citizens."

The London Evening Standard—
"Benton's summary execution only emphasizes the fact that Mexico is a semi-barbarous country. Some kind of an international compulsion will soon be necessary to stop it from wallowing in this style of corruption and cruelty."

The London Globe—
"It is intolerable that British subjects can be done to death without redress. The United States has not only the responsibility of the Monroe Doctrine, but the additional responsibility of supplying Villa and the Mexican rebels with arms, thereby promoting the lawlessness which has had such grievous results to British lives and interests.

"President Wilson has gone too far to shrink from going further. It may now be necessary for the British government to insist upon the United States taking adequate steps to protect the lives and property of British subjects and inflict punishment upon the murderer of Benton."

The People (London)—
"The crime has created a situation of such gravity that intervention by the United States may be forced by Great Britain."

The London Evening News—
"The murder of Benton has brought the Mexican crisis to a head.

"The deplorable state of things in Mexico is one for which the attitude of President Wilson is partly responsible. That he is actuated by the highest motives cannot for a moment be doubted.

"Recently President Wilson withdrew the ordinance forbidding the export of arms from the United States to Mexico, and this was accepted as direct and open encouragement of Villa. Of course, it was not an official recognition, but its effect was to strengthen the hands of the blood-thirsty bandit, whose forces have been engaged in looting the property, of neutral foreigners, and the responsibility thus entailed is very grave.

"We are not so set taken as supposing that there is any case of friction with the United States over a matter that is subject to graver regret than the murder of Benton, but it is clear that something has got to be done, and since the United States naturally feels that trouble on its own borders concerns it more than any European nation, we presume President Wilson's policy of folded hands will now end.

"At any rate, it is certain that if the murder of Benton goes unpunished the lives of all foreigners in Mexico, both Americans and Europeans, will be gravely imperilled."

The Paris Temps—
"President Wilson's compass is erratic. In the midst of the turmoil in South and Central America he stands like a majestic pedagogue upholding puritanical and idealistic views, although he varies them as shown by the recognition of the new Peruvian government.

"We don't think his policy is likely to bring a golden age in Latin America. His different adaptations of the Monroe Doctrine are involving him in endless difficulties. And still the revolution continues."

The London Sunday Times—
"It is evident that some other policy than that of patience and moral influence, supplemented by replenishing of rebel ammunition, must be adopted by President Wilson."

Paying the Income Tax

By WILLIS J. ABBOTT

AS to this income tax, I'm for it. In my day I've made scores of speeches, written acres of articles in its favor, and I exulted when it was made law. I always expected to pay it myself—I wasn't one of these people so generally sneered at who were for the tax because they didn't have the income. I only wish I had to pay a bigger tax, if the bigger income accompanied it.

But the gentlemen who formulated this tax law seemed to go out of their way to make paying hard, for even willing payers. I received my blanks the other day and sat down to fill them out. The jolts began.

By way of earning a living I write books, magazine and newspaper articles. My only stock in trade, like that of any lawyer, doctor or other professional man, is my life, health and brain. Two of these fortunately being insurable commodities I protect by life, accident and disability insurance. The annual premiums amount to about $1,500 a year, a steady charge on my income. Insurance of this sort wasn't specifically mentioned in the blank. But talking with a friend who draws his income from a sawmill I learned that his premiums for fire insurance were deducted from his net taxable income; why not then mine on the mental machinery which runs my shop.

But the man behind the counter at the collector's office was cold. "Life insurance premiums don't go!" said he laconically.

Thus the government encourages sawmills and other mills—including the gin variety—by exempting from taxation the income expended in insuring them. But the income a man disburses in insuring his life, or his physical capacity to do his work, is taxed. On my $1,500 paid out for insurance I pay the government an additional $15 tax; on the $4,500, or more, in premiums my friend pays to protect his machinery he pays no tax at all—and moreover passes that charge on in the price of his goods to the purchaser. I think I see an editor standing for an extra charge of half a cent a word because I have to carry more insurance this year!

Having filled out my blank I take it to the collector's office—a long, time-consuming journey, and even my time is worth something.

"Here, you," says the youth at the window in the courteous formula adopted by youths at a government window, "you ain't sworn to this."

"That is what I'm here for." I reply, preparing humbly to remove my hat and elevate my right hand for the solemn, if perfunctory, oath.

"We don't take affidavits here," says Authority flatly, and being further questioned recommends a clerk in a neighboring drug store as a notary. "though he's probably out at lunch now, you might come back in an hour."

His home three miles already to beseech the privilege of paying my income tax. I'm discouraged, and further learn that to secure the privilege I must pay a favored clerk in the drug store or some other notary a fee. At the moment I recall with a sense of injustice that when a multi-millionaire wants to swear off a few hundred thousand or a million dollars' worth of assessments a notary is provided for him and all possible effort is made to make as easy as possible the laudable endeavor to escape four-fifths of his honest share of taxation.

The United States Government is made of sterner stuff. If you want to pay your taxes you must pay the notary too. The government, however, does not charge for the blanks.

The absence of the lunching notary annoys me. I ask the collector's clerk, "I can send in this form by mail after getting it sworn to, can't I?"

"Of course," says the clerk, then, darkly, "but you'd better send it by registered mail!"

The last piece of advice dazes me. Has Uncle Sam's Treasury so little confidence in Uncle Sam's Postoffice that it advises against the use of the mails except with special precautions? Or is it that to the notary's fee and the taxes already expended—to say nothing of the time—a registry fee is also desirable as a further incentive to the cheerfulness of the taxpayer? I don't know. But I wonder whether Mr. Cordell Hull and his accomplices in the creation of this particular income tax law will not consider whether by getting rid of the little trivial injustices and annoyances inflicted by it, and which will be demonstrated in this year's collections, they cannot still a good deal of the clamor against the law as a whole. A good law can be made odious by the method of its enforcement.

The Undying Spirit of "Babushka"

By REV. C. F. AKED, D. D.

HEALTH is contagious, like disease. Enthusiasm is communicable by contact. One hero makes many. Catherine Breshkovsky is not only one of the supremely attractive heroines of history; she is a source of superb heroism in others.

It was an American man who sent me his deathbed, "I would gladly lay down my life for Babushka, and would count it well spent." His wife journeyed twice alone to Russia for the sake of Madame Breshkovsky and tried to follow her to Siberia. And the daughter of these two has just given to the world letters received from the great-souled woman whom they fondly call "Grandmother"—the grandmother of the revolution.

Catherine Breshkovsky is the daughter of a Russian noble. Cradled in luxury, she was surrounded by the squalor and misery of the peasants. Growing up a young womanhood in the flush of the great days, the days of the emancipation of the serfs, she felt the impulse of those mighty hopes which were "blowing wild" over the Russian empire. She opened a village school, and then, as the sunshine of those few brief days darkened into disappointment and sullen anger, she saw the peasants, who had looked for land as well as liberty, for food as well as freedom, flogged into servitude again.

In St. Petersburg, in the gay metropolitan society, she met ardent reformers like herself. Returning to her father's estate, she resumed her terrible work—the terrible work of teaching peasant girls and boys to read and write.

She married a wealthy landowner. Husband and wife fell under suspicion. Her father incurred the displeasure of the bureaucrats. Some of their friends were exiled to Siberia. When she was over six years of age she saw that her husband had little or no interest in the cause which seemed to her the one thing worth living and worth dying for. His decision to go to Siberia and death for a cause which made no appeal in his heart. She left him, and prepared to tread the winepress of suffering alone.

She joined a revolutionary circle in Kiev. From that city she set forth on her mission. She disguised herself as a peasant woman. She went as far as Spain, her fair complexion with acid. She traveled from village to village, gathering the peasants, men and women, in little groups and speaking to them with quaint parable, homely argument and mother wit. She was arrested.

She lay in prison two years awaiting her trial. There is no such thing as "bail" for a revolutionary. She protested in open court against the unfairness of her trial, and her sentence was made vindictively heavy. She was sentenced to five years in the Siberian mines and exile for life. This was in 1877.

Four years later she made an attempt to escape. She was captured and taken back to Kara. She was schtenced to four years more of hard labor and forty strokes of the lash. The flogging was not administered. She took part in various hunger strikes, and was removed to a miserable hamlet on the furthest confines of Siberia, near to the Chinese frontier.

Twenty-one years ago the present writer had the great happiness of crossing the Atlantic with George Kennan, one of the noblest of men. On starlit nights on deck Kennan talked about the men and women who were suffering for Russia.

Later Kennan spoke in the writer's church in Liverpool, and he told the story of Catherine Breshkovsky.

His account of her last words shook the great meeting like a tempest. She said to him as he bade her farewell, "Mr. Kennan, we may die in exile, and our children's children may die in exile, but something must come of it at last!"

* * *

After more than a quarter of a century passed in prison, in the mines, and in exile, the Russian government allowed her to leave the country. She came to America. She made friends wherever she went—not friends for Babushka only, but friends of Russian freedom. She might have enjoyed prosperity, peace, high honor in this free land. In her heart there was a kind of fighting that would not let her rest. After a little time she returned to Russia. It seemed that she had disappeared off the face of the earth. Then America and civilized Europe were startled by the news that Catherine Breshkovsky was again in the hands of the Russian police. She was brought to trial in 1910. She was sent back to Siberia under a sentence of exile for life.

Two months ago this indomitable old woman, unbowed beneath the weight of her seventy years, more than one-half of which have been spent in penal servitude and in exile, made another attempt to escape.

The Russian police have her now. It is not likely that she will ever again escape from their clutches.

Her letters are very beautiful. They give the assurance that the movement for which Catherine Breshkovsky suffers can never be quenched. It cannot be quenched in the blood of multitudes.

Comradeship

By ELBERT HUBBARD

A MAN alone will accomplish little. All of his thoughts and acts have a direct relationship to others.

Men succeed only as they work together.

Without companionship ambition droops; courage flags, reason totters, ambition vanishes, and the man dies.

Nature puts a quick limit on the horrors of solitary confinement—she unhinges the reason of the prisoner, and he addresses comrades who have no existence save in his fevered imagination.

The man who does useful work is in direct communication with other people—he works for others, and the thought that he is doing something for somebody sustains him.

The "lifer" is always sustained by the hope of pardon—as long as he lives he is a part of the whole, and should it ever come to him that his case is a hopeless one and he is alone, his usefulness is gone.

Soldiers who are cowards by themselves often fight bravely when placed on the firing line with others.

We succeed only as we band ourselves with others. Each man is a molecule that is needed to make up the all.

* * *

Every man who has accomplished much in the world of art, literature, architecture, finance, has been aided by a good woman.

A man alone is only half a man.

Men and women inspire each other. They put each other on their good behavior.

Safety at Sea—the First Lifeboat

By REV. THOMAS S B. GREGORY.

THE year of the launching of the first successful lifeboat is clearly entitled to rank among the great years of human achievement; and because Henry Greathead did in the year 1798 accomplish such triumph, he should ever be remembered as one of the true benefactors of the human race.

In 1789 the Adventure, of Newcastle, was wrecked off the English coast, and the loss of life was appalling. The ship was stranded only 300 yards from shore, yet nothing could be done for her, as no one dared to put off in an ordinary boat to the rescue. But the men along the shore who watched the pathetic scene were human, and they at once got together to prevent. If possible, a repetition of the spectacle that had so wrung their hearts.

A committee was formed, and premiums were offered for the construction of a lifeboat. Many plans came in, and the committee finally selected the model that had been offered by Greathead.

Questions Answered

C. E. H.—You are wrong in thinking that there were fire insurance companies in antiquity. There are traces, it is true, of contributions toward the relief of fire sufferers, but it was not until after the great fire in London, in 1666, that real fire insurance was known. It was not until the year 1681 that the first regular office for insuring against loss by fire was opened by a combination of persons near the Royal Exchange. This pioneer institution was followed by others of like nature all over Europe.

P. L. M.—The Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of the United States receives a salary of $15,000 a year, and each of the Associate Justices $14,500. When any justice has served ten years, he may, with the exception of the chief justice, retire on full pay, provided he is then seventy years old. If the chief justice retires under such conditions his salary, for the remainder of his life, is reduced from $15,000 to $14,500; being thus placed on the same basis as the associate justices.
